Japan Discriminates Against American Trade, Violates Treaties, Note Says.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States today flatly rejected Japan's proposed "new order" in China but tacitly invited Japan and other powers concerned to enter negotiations regarding possible revision of foreign rights and interests in the Far East.

Details of the note, made public here, disclosed that this government charged Japan with unfair discrimination against American trade and commerce with China and with assuming the powers of sovereignty in China by the use of armed force in violation of existing treaties.

Leaves Peace Door Open.

Such treaties, it said, guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China and equal rights for all powers, are not subject to unilateral nullification. However, it admitted possible desirability of change and left the door open to international conversations on the subject.

"Meanwhile," it said, "this government reserves all rights of the United States as they exist and does not give assent to impairment of any of those rights."

The note was the latest in a long series of exchanges between the United States and Japan regarding alleged violation of the open door policy and unfair treatment of Americans and their interests by the Japanese military.

Japan's last reply to these charges and demands that such discrimination cease was made on Nov. 18, and was regarded by the United States as "not responsive" and definitely "unsatisfactory."

Hits Trade Restrictions.

The note, delivered by Ambassador Joseph C. Grew to the Japanese foreign office today, said that restrictions placed upon American nationals in China by the Japanese military is "unquestionably discriminatory, in its effect, against legitimate American interests."

Goebbels, Beaten Or Ill, To Address Germany Tonight

BERLIN—(INS)—An official announcement today said Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels has sufficently recovered from an attack of grippe to broadcast a New Year message tonight. Goebbels will be heard over all German stations in a 15-minute talk.

LONDON—(INS)—Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, suffered a nervous breakdown when told of publicity given abroad to the alleged beating he suffered at the hands of friends of a motion picture star's husband, the London Daily Mirror asserted today.

The ministry of propaganda has asked Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop to deny stories about the Goebbels thrashing, but so far he has refused to do so, the London paper said.

The Mirror yesterday asserted that Goebbels was set upon by friends of Gustav Froelich, German star-producer, when Goebbels was found in the flat of Froelich's wife, Lida Baarova, also a film star, on Dec. 22.

Schools Hold City's '38 News Spotlight; Davey Proves Best 'Copy' In State Stories

Building Program Termed Biggest Story Of Year In Mansfield.

By JOSEPH E. KUEBLER
(City Editor of The News-Journal)

Big news came to Mansfield from many and varied fronts in the past year, but it was left to a staid and routine source—the schools—to furnish the major headlines.

A million dollar school building program, launched in the closing weeks of 1938, became the city's No. 1 news story in a year spotted with an airplane tragedy that took the lives of two prominent young Mansfielders; the electorate's swing toward Republicanism; an outbreak of smallpox of epidemic proportions, and the comeback of business and industry

There were many other happenings that made headlines. Relief kept on the front pages as the result of a problem over how the soaring costs could be financed, and a record work relief program.

Death took a "20 per cent holiday" in county traffic—fatal accidents were a fifth less than last year. One hundred and fifty years of progress were commemorated as the sesqui-centennial of the Northwest Territory was celebrated.

The city granted Woodland's demands for increased water pressure by spending $75,000 for improvements.

New building, always a barometer of a city's well-being, came within $3,000 of the banner 1937 total and took its share of the 1938 news spotlight.

Schools Take Spotlight.

As another year passes into history tonight, one of the most progressive periods in the history of the city's educational system will be under way. Approval of a $550,000 bond issue at a special election in September after a second spirited campaign, coupled with a $450,000 PWA grant, paved the way for a million dollar building splurge—and the year's top story.

Plans, specifications, bids, awarding of contracts and all the multitudinous details were rushed through in less than three months so all 11 units of the program could be launched before Dec. 31, the deadline set by PWA for starting the projects.

Next year at this time Mansfield will have two new junior high schools, in addition to an addition to Senior high school and repairs to eight elementary buildings.

Tragedy Provides Headlines.

On the first day of March two young Mansfield students at Leland Stanford university in California received a message to hurry home—their father was critically ill. That evening they boarded a

Ohio Had Plenty of Excitement During Year—Governor Made Most of it.

By JOHN H. COLBURN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's big news in 1938—both in name and action—was Gov. Martin Luther Davey.

This colorful executive was in the headlines from January to December. He fought an investigation of his administration; battled the federal government over pensions; ordered out troops in his feud with the CIO; lost a third-term nomination and declined to act to spare the life of a mother convicted of murder.

Ohio Associated Press member news and telegraph editors gave the one-time tree surgeon the outstanding mention in their reviews of the leading state stories of 1938.

The stories as these editors picked them lined up like this:

ELECTION—The Democratic party revolt which resulted in the defeat of Davey for a third term nomination by Charles Sawyer. The powerful and in some cases unexpected Republican sweep in the Nov. 8 election which won party members control of the state government, legislature, 15 of 24 positions in the congressional delegation and one U. S. senatorship.

ANNA MARIE HAHN—Convicted in 1937 for the "murder-for-profit" poison slaying of Jacob Wagner, 78, Cincinnati gardener, 32-year-old Bavarian-born Mrs. Hahn, mother of a 12-year-old boy, spent 1938 fighting for her life in the courts. After the U. S. supreme court spurned her new trial appeal, she asked Governor Davey to commute the sentence to life. He refused and she was electrocuted Dec. 7, in the midst of saying the Lord's Prayer after crying hysterically for someone to spare her.

INVESTIGATIONS — Governor Davey thwarted temporarily in 1937 an investigation of his administration by vetoing an appropriation to finance a senate committee probe. He asked in 1938 for supplemental appropriations and that paved the way for a committee considering the need for such appropriations to probe reports of "legal graft."

While Davey charged the investigators were on a "mud-slinging" expedition to ruin him politically they heard testimony that the state paid excessive prices for some materials. When their work was finished they claimed the inquiry saved the state $3,000,000.

The hectic primary election was enlivened by Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy's investigation of charges that Davey aids were soliciting campaign contributions in violation of civil service laws. A special grand jury indicted 18 persons, one of them Finance Director M. Ray Allison, a cabinet member. The grand jury previously had investigated the parole system at Davey's request.

PENSIONS—Three days before the Aug. 9 primary the federal Social Security board charged Davey was attempting to influence Ohio's 112,000 pensioners to support him.

County Does Its Bit, Cuts Traffic Toll 20 Per Cent

Accidents Take 23 Lives During Year But Only 12 of Victims Were Richland Residents.

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Richland county did its part in the nation-wide campaign to cut the traffic toll in 1938.

Motor accidents in the county claimed 23 lives during the year that ends tonight, as compared with the 1937 toll of 29—a reduction of 20 per cent.

But Richland county drivers did better than that—for of the 23 deaths, only 12 were persons living in the county. In 1937, 23 of the 29 persons killed in traffic accidents were Richland county residents.

Thus, almost half of the 1938 toll was due to accidents involving drivers from other counties and states.

Five Killed In City.

Five fatal accidents occurred in the city itself this year—exactly the same as last.

In 1938 four pedestrians were killed—in 1937, six.

In 1938 grade crossing crashes killed six—in 1937, five.

In both years, there was one month in which there were no traffic accidents. In both there were months in which seven persons lost their lives.

August—usually a month of numerous accidents—had no traffic deaths in Richland county this year.

But July, its predecessor on the calendar had seven.

It was during July that the worst automobile tragedy of the year occurred. Four persons, all from Cleveland, were fatally injured on July 1 in a three-car collision on the Ashland road east of Mansfield.

HOLD HEARING

Ashland Commissioners Hear Appeal of Bondholders.

ASHLAND — A hearing held yesterday by county commissioners on the applications of two bonding firms seeking their release as surety companies for County Treasurer H. O. Faber was continued until next Friday.

The bonding companies stated in their applications that they have reasonable proof to believe that a shortage exists in the treasurer's office.

The applications were filed by the New York Casualty and American Surety companies, which furnished bonds amounting to $30,000 on Faber.

R. H. Munsie, superintendent of claims for both companies, attended the hearing as did Faber.

The books of the treasurer's office are now being audited by state examiners.

LIQUOR CHIEF

Taylor, O.S.U. Professor, New Head of Control Department.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Prof. Jacob E. Taylor of Ohio State university, will replace J. W. Miller of Bucyrus, as head of the state department of liquor control on Jan. 99, when John W. Bricker becomes governor.

Bricker named Taylor, chairman of the university's department of accounting since 1930, to the cabinet post yesterday. The professor, who will be given a leave of absence for his new duties, supervised installation of the accounting systems in the liquor department and the unemployment compensation commission.

A certified public accountant in North Dakota and Ohio, Taylor is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and holds a Master's degree from the University of North Dakota. He had been connected with Ohio State since 1927.

Finger Nail Filings Disclose Osteopath Killed Wife, Charge

CANON CITY, Colo.—(INS)—A warrant charging murder was issued by authorities today against Dr. Ray L. Atterberry, 40, an osteopath, in connection with the sensational strangulation slaying of his attractive wife, Mona Atterberry, 31-year-old prominent Canon City clubwoman.

The warrant was signed by Raynor Holmes, jr., Fremont county coroner after the coroner received a report from Dr. Francis McConnell noted Denver criminologist, who helped send Anna Marie Hahn, poison murderess to the Ohio electric chair.

A widespread search was immediately launched for Dr. Atterberry who left Cannon City yesterday, explaining to authorities that he was going to a mountain district, 50 miles from here, for a few days' rest.

The warrant was issued after investigating officers returned here shortly after midnight from Denver with the report from Dr. McConnell, noted toxicologist, that he found blood stains and pieces of fabric under the fingernails of the dead woman.

District Attorney E. M. Eagleton also said that Dr. McConnell had found definite blood spots in the rear of the Atterberry home near where the woman's body was found.

Dr. Atterberry himself had reported the death of his beautiful wife. He told authorities he found her at the foot of a basement stairway upon his return home on that day, with her neck broken.

Steady Gains In Last Quarter Bring Forecast City's on Road to 'Better Days.'

CONFIDENCE RESTORED

Leaders Unanimous Volume In New Year Will Exceed '38; Some See 25 Pct. Gains.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

A new period of prosperity, based on the steady upswing of business in the last quarter of the year was the promise as Mansfield paused on the threshold of 1939 today.

Their predictions for commercial gains during the past three months, more than realized, industrial leaders of the city today viewed the new year with far greater optimism than that with which they entered 1938.

Prospects Best Since '29.

The steady, upward curve of the last quarter of 1938 has restored confidence that the business volume will gain impetus and prospects for "good times" are brighter than any year since 1929.

The optimistic note that sounded throughout Mansfield industry was that business conditions generally would be considerably better during the forthcoming year.

Captains of industry were unanimous in asserting that business volume would surpass that of the year just ending, and predictions of increases ranging from 10 to 25 per cent were heralded by some.

Employment Up.

The closing of the year finds production levels generally on a par with those of last fall and employment has shown a gain of 22 per cent since last January.

Larger payrolls coupled with bonuses, which were poured into Mansfield trade channels during the closing months resulted in added buying power and signs of business recovery already have shown evidence.

Home building, one of the reliable barometers of prosperity along with bank clearings, automobile sales and postal receipts, bear out reports from commer-

WHERE'D IT GO?

Cold Wave Misses Mansfield, But No One Cares.

Apparently lost in the Michigan and Canadian wilds, that zero wave won't get here after all, the weatherman said today.

Although Mansfield had a chilly 8 degrees above zero this morning, the temperature went up to 22 before noon and New Year revelers were assured that no frigid weather would cool their celebrating tonight.

A current of warm air that sneaked in from the Pacific coast was too much for the second cold wave of the week which forecasters had predicted would bring record low temperatures to the middle west.

The mercury was expected to stay above 20 degrees in Ohio tonight, and Sunday will be a pleasant wintry day, the weatherman predicted.

THUGS ABANDON 2ND ESCAPE CAR

Police Find Auto Which Gunmen Stole In Flight.

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — The automobile which three bandits took from Joe Carso Friday morning after they wrecked their own car in escaping from the $35,000 holdup of the railway express agency was found early today on a side street in nearby Girard.

Patrolman Barney Mushrush, who found the car about 3 a. m. said it was not there at 1 a. m. when he passed.

Detectives have questioned relatives and friends of Steve Yagoditch, 34, whose picture they say, has been identified by eight witnesses as that of one of the bandits.

Mrs. Jaster said the two would be seated at the speaker's table. It will be their first appearance together under such circumstances since the August primaries.

Renews Offer

The Leesburg, O., Citizen, published by Mack Sauer, above, has doubled its offer of $10,000 made last year for the first quintuplets born within eight miles of Leesburg. The offer last year went unclaimed. Besides offering $20,000 in the quintuplet class, the Citizen said it would pay $10,000 to the first quadruplets, $1,000 to the first triplets, $10 to the first twins and $5 to the first single baby born within eight miles of Leesburg in 1939.

SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Driver of One Car Near Death, 7 Girls In Second Machine Suffer Minor Injuries.

A collision of two automobiles at West Fourth street and Penn avenue sent eight persons to the General hospital last night and physicians today held little hope for the recovery of the driver of one of the machines.

Most seriously injured was John L. Thorne, 34, of 411 West Fifth street. He suffered a skull fracture and has been unconscious since the time of the accident at 6:45 p. m. yesterday.

Thorne, an asssitant foreman at Westinghouse, was riding alone when his car was struck by another machine as he entered West Fourth street from Penn avenue.

The driver of the other machine was Miss Helen Sturgeon, 34 Chilton avenue, a Bowling Green college student, who was en route with six other girls to her home where a farewell party was to have been held in her honor.

All seven girls were taken to

Rowdy Welcome Awaits 1939—City Plans Two-Day 'Ovation'

When Father Time ushers that tottering old gent, 1938, off the world's stage tonight, and sponsors the debut of young 1939, there can be no complaint about an unresponsive audience in Mansfield, for a two-day celebration that would gladden the heart of any new player, has been arranged.

Come midnight tonight and Mansfield will "go to town" with a rowdy welcome to the New Year, but tomorrow there will be a lull as churches observe the event in more sedate and dignified manner. Again on Monday, when New Year is officially observed, there will be parties and "open house" at a number of places.

Night clubs, cafes and theaters will be "wide open" at the midnight hour, with entertainment for the occasion at most of them. There will be private dances and no lack of private parties.

One of the biggest of the private parties will be that at the American Legion club tonight when both floors of the home will be given over to merry-making. The first floor will be cleared for round and square dancing with a hillbilly orchestra providing the music, while the ballroom will be given over to dancing to the music of Bob Richards orchestra, and a professional floor show.

The Our club, one of the older clubs in Mansfield, will hold its annual New Year eve dance party at the Mansfield-Leland ballroom.

All serving of drinks, however, and dancing, even in the private

LACK QUORUM FOR LEASURE CONFIRMATION

Governor's Supporters Burn 'Midnight Oil' In Attempt To Obtain Vote.

SENATORS LEAVE CAPITAL

Special Session Near Collapse As Round-up Fails to Bring Lawmakers to Chamber.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — A special session of the legislature which Republicans term a Democratic "job grab" expedition apparently bordered on collapse today.

"The situation looks more hopeless than it did last night," observed Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Maurice J. Allen, who was unsuccessful in rounding up a quorum of 19 of the 31 senators.

A fight over confirmation of Charles Leasure for reappointment to the state unemployment compensation commission—which has 3,000 state jobs to distribute—precipitated the stalemate

Lack One Member

Senate leaders burned the "midnight oil" but throughout 27 roll calls they lacked one member to make a quorum. If a quorum could be seated Davey administration leaders were confident they had sufficient votes to confirm Leasure for a six-year term.

Only a half dozen members were present at the scheduled 10 a. m. reconvening today. Allen said that a check of hotel rooms indicated that some members had left the city.

As a bizarre senate session continued into another day, the Republicans stood ready to snatch the prize if an agreement is not reached by midnight.

If Leasure or a successor is not confirmed by the present senate, the incoming Republicans will have the privilege of making the choice.

The one senator is needed to constitute a quorum of 19 members, which would enable Gov. Davey's supporters to proceed with the confirmation.

On "Stay Away" Strike.

Completion of the quorum was blocked by a "stay-away" strike of eight Democrats and five Republicans. They walked out of the chamber at 4 p. m., when a call of the senate began. After mustering 18 of the 31 members, Democratic Floor Leader Keith Lawrence tried until 12:10 a. m. today to win over one of the eight "striking" Democrats.

Failing, he ordered that the roll call continue throughout the night (one clerk was left in the semi-

SWING UPWARD

Bank Clearances Begin Belated Climb as Year Ends.

Falling 27 per cent below prosperous 1937, Mansfield's bank clearings this year began a belated climb in December to indicate the city's gradual return to better business conditions.

The December clearings, which approached $6,800,000, were the best for any month of 1938 which saw approximately $74,000,000 flow through Mansfield banks.

Despite a marked gain in the final month of 1938, total figures for the year lagged nearly $28,000,000 behind clearings for 1937, figures compiled by H. A. McElhaney, secretary of the Clearing House association, revealed today.

Indicating a slackening of business conditions in the year ending tonight, monthly bank figures for 1938 clung monotonously to the $6,000,000 mark, only two months varying from that figure.

cial interests of a "satisfactory year."

New construction which totaled $1,114,000 practically equalled the 1937 valuations of $1,117,000, one of the highest figures set for any year since 1928.

New residential construction which continued at a steady pace from April, dropped only slightly below the 1937 figure of 137 new homes. This year 132 new residences were constructed, with the greater portion of the building in southwest part of the city.

Three new mechanized mills were placed in operation during the year at the Empire Sheet & Tin Plate company which represent an investment of $250,000.

The Mansfield Tire and Rubber company proved its confidence in Mansfield and business by spending $200,000 for an addition to its plant and new equipment which will enable it to produce from 1,500 to 2,000 more tires daily.

Other major improvements that added to the city's valuations were the construction of a new $100,000 theater by the Constant theater circuit, a new $22,000 building to serve as district headquarters for the Nickels bakery.

Bank clearings totaling $74,000,000 skidded $27,000,000 under the 1937 figure of $101,000,000, but held consistently month for month during the year.

Mansfield postal receipts, paced by a record Christmas mailing, promised to equal, if not exceed the 1937 receipts, according to Postmaster Herman P. Homberger, who said complete figures for the year were not available.

The following is what Mansfield industrial leaders have to say of 1938 and the new year:

George W. Stephens, president and general manager, Mansfield Tire and Rubber company: "While we are, of course, affected by what general conditions may bring about next year, we plan to continue our present five-day production schedule throughout the winter and spring months, and present indications seem favorable for our company to continue this schedule through the balance of the year.

"After making a careful survey of the outlook for next year's business, we feel that so far as this company is concerned, the outlook for 1939 is very encouraging."

Frank B. Williams, jr., vice president in charge of merchandising activities of Westinghouse: "Business which was anticipated at the beginning of 1938 has not come up to our expectation, but in spite of this we have gone ahead with our development and research, having confidence in the future. We have also made large expenditures in keeping up our buildings and equipment. This alone has given employment to an appreciable number of people.

"We are entering 1939 with some uncertainty, but with a definite feeling that business will be better. Our selling organization throughout the country has the experience of 1938 behind it, and fully realizes the importance of putting forth every effort to secure a more substantial volume of sales. Our sales and promotion plans which were recently presented to our distributors convention here at Mansfield were enthusiastically received and every one left with a determination that they would secure more business with our new line of merchandise in the coming year. Our field organization, along with headquarters here at Mansfield, fully realizes its share in the responsibility of putting more people back to work.

"Although we have completed a very trying year, one which has given us great concern owing to the low activity in our plant, we are glad to put this year behind us so that we may go into a new year with renewed effort and a feeling of confidence that business conditions are improving."

P. R. Tappan, president, Tappan Stove company: "Although our business volume is down two per cent, we consider 1938 as a satisfactory year. Our employment has remained quite uniform and wages are at the highest level ever paid by the company.

"We look for a sustained increase in business during 1939 and should be able to finish the new year equally as well as 1938 if not somewhat better."

George Draffan, executive vice president, Ohio Brass company: "Because such a large share of our business depends upon the purchasing power of privately owned electric utility companies, it is extremely difficult to predict our total sales volume for 1939.

"However, if the expected upturn in heavy industries materialize, there should be a decided increase in our sales to coal and metal mines and electric railway firms.

"Because of the recent developments of our engineering departments, both here and at Barberton, O., we are in a position to take advantage of any improvement in general industrial business."

James M. Hill, president Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company: "During 1938, the steel industry was undoubtedly plunged into a more severe recession than at any time in current years or than business generally.

"The latter months were encouraging as far as operators were concerned but the price condition was not satisfactory.

"We view 1939 with a belief that there will be a sustained business recovery. We are confident that this will permit Empire to operate at a higher capacity than during 1938 and to increase its customer relationship.

"We feel certain that 1939 will be a year far more encouraging than the year about to close."

W. G. Moore, president, Humphreys Manufacturing company: "While 1938 started off rather poorly, the year as a whole has been reasonably satisfactory. The most gratifying feature has been the fact that we have been able to maintain a good rate of operations during the last quarter of the year, being 40 per cent better than during the fourth quarter of 1937. Operations in November and December were 80 per cent better than the same months of 1937.

"We look for good business in 1939. Barring unforseen difficulties, our volume should be from 10 to 20 per cent greater than in 1938."

S. G. Vinson, president, Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company: "It seems to us that the capital goods industries (in which classification our products fall) are about due for a break.

"In this industry it is not so much a question of inventories or goods on the shelf, because we engineer and build our products almost exclusively to order and on specification. Nor it is a question of renewals, since we necessarily build for long life and hard usage, so that replacements are very infrequent.

"On the other hand, our industry is continually developing equipment of greater operating economy and better engineered for the various applications. It therefore follows that our program for increased volume is geared to a plan of economy of operation in power savings and improving plant production for our customers, by replacement of obsolete machinery with modern power and labor saving apparatus.

"Having kept our product in the front ranks in this respect, we feel we are in a position to command a larger volume of business in 1939 by a possible increase of 20 to 25 per cent over the last three-year average."

Charles H. Keating, president, Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company: "The slump in business in 1938, and rate reductions in certain parts of the country affecting both fire and automobile insurance, are no doubt responsible for the fact that few insurance companies will show any increase in premiums written this year.

"This is true with Lumbermens. However, the total amount of premiums written will exceed that of 1937 by only a few thousand dollars but because of a satisfactory loss experience, we will be able to show a substantial increase in surplus, for which we can say 1938 was a satisfactory year for the company.

"It is difficult to forecast what the coming year has in store for fire insurance companies. Increasing taxation, which so far has not been passed on to policyholders, has become a serious problem and unless the present favorable loss experience continues, it is going to be impossible for fire insurance companies to show a profit."

Carl Oberlin, president, Martin Steel Products company: "The bulk of our output is sold to the farmer and with prices of farm products considerably lower than a year ago, the outlook for 1939 might not be considered too favorable.

"A factor in our favor, however, and one which might conceivably cause a substantial increase in sales, is that farmers have been unable for the past 20 years, to make the necessary repairs and improvements on their farm buildings. As the result there is a tremendous dammed up demand which will make itself felt as soon as the farmer can find the necessary funds.

"Our sales for 1938 showed an increase of 12 per cent over the year of 1937, and barring a crop failure in 1939, will at least retain that figure."

W. C. Mead, district manager, Ohio Fuel Gas company: "We have had a very succesful year. While our general volume has grossed less than the 1937 figures, we are not disappointed.

"The last quarter of 1938 has been exceptionally good and sales have steadily increased to hold up the business volume for the year.

"This has been an added inspiration to industry and we look forward to the coming year with expectations for a year of banner business."

LeRoy Wittemire, general manager, Mansfield Telephone company: "We showed a tremendous station loss the first seven months of 1938, but a decided upturn in the station gain for the past five months, will help us to close the year with the same number of stations as we had at the outset of 1938.

"All indications are that the year of 1939 will show decided increase in our business over the past year, as the momentum gained in the last five months is expected to carry through the coming year."

Watch Service Tonight—Religious New Year services will be held at 11 p. m. today and again at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Mansfield Union Gospel Mission, 287 North Main street.

JUSTICE'S WIFE U. S. WITNESS

Faces Prison For Smuggling, She'll Aid Government's Case Against Others.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The stylish, attractive wife of Justice Edgar J. Lauer of the state supreme court, facing a possible eight year sentence for conspiring to have her new winter wardrobe smuggled from Paris, will testify for the government against her alleged co-conspirator next week, it was reported today.

He is Alber N. Chaperau, erstwhile motion picture agent and frequent trans-atlantic traveler, charged with having falsely represented himself as an attache to the Nicaraguan consul general to get immunity from customs to smuggle in costly jewels and finery for his friends of the cosmopolitan set.

His trial starts Tuesday. Another witness against him will be the movie and radio comedy star, George Burns, who pleaded guilty to a smuggling conspiracy charge Dec. 18, the same day he was indicted by a federal grand jury.

Mrs. Lauer pleaded guilty yesterday when she appeared unexpectedly before Federal Judge John C. Knox.

At her arraignment two weeks ago, Mrs. Lauer had pleaded not guilty.

A physician, nurse, and an attorney, Theodore Kiendl, accompanied Mrs. Lauer to court yesterday. Her husband had explained previously that she was ill.

Sinclair Lewis To Be 'Good Actor' In Time, Critics Say

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The theater clan agreed today that Sinclair Lewis might become in time a good actor, but none would say that he was more than fair in his debut as a professional here last night.

Winner of Nobel and Pulitzer awards in literature, the famed author used a play of his own, "Angela is Twenty-Two," as a vehicle for his first appearance in big time.

The play itself was all right, but Lewis appeared ill at ease, lacked the subtle skill that could have been injected into his role, and spoke in a voice that was at times too thin.

"His performance generally was that of a beginner with negative value," said Sam T. Wilson of the Columbus Dispatch. "Sometimes, though, his playing was so right that you did not remember that he was a novice."

Kenneth D. Toill of the Ohio State Journal said that "the soul of the theater is in him" and added "time undoubtedly will make an actor of him. The American stage needs him desperately."

clubs, must stop at 2:30 a. m., according to Police Chief Meade K. Bates. This hour is set up by state regulations and Bates said today that there would be "no winking at the law" because of the holiday. The state liquor stores will close at the regular time, 11 p. m.

The chief warned that there would be no "let down" so far as drunken drivers were concerned, either, and that patrolmen would be especially on the lookout tonight for unsteady autoists.

"If you are going to a party outside your own home and know there will be drinks—leave your car in the garage," Bates advised. "Take a taxi both to and from the party, so that tomorrow you can be reasonably sure of waking up in your own home instead of in a hospital bed."

Tonight's celebrations, running into the dawn, will not deter Mansfield churches from having special observances of the holiday and sermons and music appropriate for the occasion have been planned.

A number of clubs and organizations will hold "open house" in the traditional manner Monday. The Elks club and the Masonic Temple will be open to members for their annual observance of New Year, as will the Knights of Pythias.

Two veteran organizations plan open houses also the American Legion at the Legion club home, and the Spanish War veterans and their auxiliary will take over the Memorial building for the day, with an invitational dinner at 6:30 and installation of officers of Camp Charles Dick in the evening.

The Knights of Columbus will extend hospitality in "open house" to members Monday at the lodge's home on West Fourth street.

Business places, and all public offices will be closed Monday in observances of the holiday.

BERLIN'S PLAN ON SUBS CAUSES BRITISH SHIFT

Chamberlain Revises Policy on Spain's Civil War On Arms Expansion Program.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Germany's determination to build a big submarine fleet was largely responsible for a sudden, dratic change in British policy toward the Spanish civil war, it was reported today.

Until recently Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was believed to have been ready to recognize the Spanish nationalists as belligerents, with consequent rights under international law.

Within the last few days it has been made known that when he visits Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy in mid-January, Chamberlain will refuse to accord the insurgents recognition until the nationalists dismiss their German as well as their Italian "volunteers."

Would Be Sub Base.

The reason for the change was said today to be that the British government now recognizes — what France has recognized all along—that Spain could be a potential submarine base for Germany.

The Spanish republican government has repeatedly warned Britain and France that Germany and Italy were preparing submarine bases in the Baleario and Canary Islands and on the Spanish mainland.

It was understood that the German notification of its submarine program reached the foreign office three weeks ago, on the day before Chamberlain delivered the speech criticising German newspapers which caused the German embassy staff and German newspapers to boycott the dinner at which he made it.

The German plan to build a submarine fleet of formidable size came as a most unpleasant year-end shock to the British public. In Berlin, it is reported as being aimed against Russia, but early reaction here was that the German plan would cause an even more energetic stepping up of the British rearmament, now getting into its full momentum.

Some sources here thought that German newspaper criticism of the United States naval program, might mean that the Nazi government would cite American construction in justification of its own building.

darkened chamber to do the job) while the senators who answered "present" went to their hotels for sleep.

Friends of the governor cried that they were being "double crossed" by Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder and Democratic State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach.

They said Yoder and Limbach endorsed Leasure and promised to bring in some senators to help the cause, but failed to do so.

It was learned authoritatively that Leasure even assured Limbach he would recognize his authority as state chairman in making the appointments. Limbach, it was said, feared Leasure would give jobs only to persons approved by Davey.

The governor met most of the 18 senators in a one-hour conference which lasted until 1:30 a. m. Sen. William Boyd of Cleveland, an anti-Davey Democrat, urged that he withdraw Leasure's appointment and substitute Senator Lawrence.

The governor indicated he would stand by Leasure so long as the latter wanted the job.

"I have never run out on a friend," he declared.

PLENTY HAPPENED IN CITY SPORTS CIRCLES TO MARK YEAR OF 1938.

By OSCAR RUHL
• News-Journal Sports Editor

RIGHT here in Mansfield, 1938 produced a sports show that compared favorably with any in history for sparkling exploits, astonishing upsets and frequent flashes of melodrama.

What were the leading episodes and events? You probably remember many. We do, and here they are:

Of course, you remember the night Art Fovarque, jr., and S. S. Humbert played "moonlight" golf, starting at 9:45 p. m. and finishing at midnight. Only one ball was lost. . . . The day three no-hit games were pitched in the kid leagues at the Fairground. The no-hitters were turned in by Hahn, Slaybaugh and Phillips.

Jimmy Stout, just off the operating table, shot a 68 at Possum Run. Pete Linster came back the next day with a 67, and Stout came right back with a 65, one short of Reggie Myles' course record. And we can't forget the embarrassment of the man who stripped on the same course when a swarm of yellow jackets got inside of his clothes. It happened on Ladies' Day.

Failure of the American Legion baseball club to draw enough fans to the fairground to pay expenses. . . . Pete Schadek, Red Keck and Clair Bell tied for medal honors in the Coolridge tourney with 74's. . . . Vic Alderson appearing in his B. V. D.'s at the Liberty park tennis court. He forgot his tennis shorts. . . . Charles Nichols bought the first Mansfield high grid ticket in July.

Vern Jones announced City league basketball plans on Aug. 26 . . . Bob Enos received a woman's trophy, by mistake, after winning The News-Journal single title . . . The superiority of the Legion over the Herrick Hi-Speeds in city baseball series, blanking the Oils in three straight games with a total of seven hits . . . Former Governor George White received a lawn umbrella as the "booby" prize in the Ohio Seniors' golf tourney at Westbrook.

Nick Loris Set New Record at Coolridge.

NICK LORIS scored a record 30 at Coolridge . . . The domination of the golfing Linsters—Thelma, Pete and Nick all winning titles . . . Ellsworth Vines, on his way to the National Open Golf tourney, got all of the attention in his stop in the city, and his traveling partner, Pat Abbott, went about unnoticed. Then Abbott reached the finals. Vines fell out in the first round . . . Ed Henrick received the "Most Popular Player" award in the City softball league. . . . The boy who held out a sign as Massillon football rooters came to the city. It said: "Massillon, Boo."

The bandsman at Stadium field who went the wrong way after breaking out of a formation . . . Gene Harmon of Madison won the state scoring title. . . . The Mansfield high drum which took a beating from Shelby's halfback, Harold Bliss. . . . Wayne Hursh's 14 straight strikes, but only a 290 game. . . . The Moose kegler's 3330 . . . and Carpenter grade school's cage victory scored without a field goal. The score: 3 to 0.

Johnny Linta's pole vaulting . . . and Tim Nolan's unsuccessful attempt to revive boxing interest with the Alabama Kid and Bud Creed go. . . . Bob Evans' demand for $5,000 to place a baseball club in the city. . . . Fred Buzard's infield hit that spoiled a Hayesville pitcher's no-hit bid after 26 men had been retired in a row. . . . The Schoolmasters' softball victory over the Sandusky teachers.

That renovating swimming pool at the Y. M. C. A. . . . King Vagabond's new world trot record for a half mile track. . . . Brig Young's auto tag—WY-739, his highest bowling total. . . . Lucas' Tom Greulich's 164 points to win the county league scoring title. . . . The Tygers' rush through the district tournament to gain the state finals. . . . The United Presbyterians' 78-11 and 71-14 defeats in the Church league . . . Art Hilborn's 300 game, rolled two days after missing by one pin. Ralph Schad's perfect game.

Sports Suffered First Defeat In Tourney.

THE Yuncker Sports' first defeat of the season in the Willard cage tourney . . . The Madison Rams' victrola, which they carry with them to every game . . . Neil Maxwell found it difficult to lug a bag of golf sticks, plus a couple of flat irons, around a golf course . . . Leland Stock threatened Walter Fensch's all-time single record with a 791 total, just four pins short . . . Then there was that oddity of every team in a Friendly House basketball league being tied for first place at one time during the race.

Donkey ball at the Y . . . and all those holes-in-one by Fred Tracy, Sylvester Kleshinski, Bart Haley, E. R. Hartman and Gene Zediker at Westbrook and Hugh Ferguson, George Schuckman and John Mahon at Possum Run.

Lore, Kinkade Stand Out For College Cagers in Battle At Mansfield High.

By CHARLES MARTIN

A BAND of Ohio collegiate freshmen stars gave some 200 Mansfield basketball fans an eyeful of their sharpshooting ability on the Senior high hardwood last night.

Welded into a high-scoring quintet by Noel Morgan, erstwhile Mansfield high ace, the freshmen gave on interesting demonstration while handing the City Class A league all-stars a 33 to 22 drubbing.

Performing without the services of Johnny Hallabrin, Ohio State frosh, and Buddy Mercer, former Newark high flash, the college lads broke loose with scoring sprees in the second and fourth frames to win.

No Match for Victors.

The City league players, handicapped by the absence of Al Stickler, Delnore Goldsmith and John Reese, turned in a creditable performance, but were no match for the better-trained invaders.

With Eddie Lore of Mt. Vernon high fame and Tom Kinkade, state individual scoring champion last year, leading the way, the freshmen put on a rally in the second stanza to overtake the all stars and grab a lead they never relinquished.

The City league team came back after the intermission and limited the collegiates to three points in the third chapter, but was unable to break through the stout defense of the frosh in a desperate effort to regain the lead.

While Tom Farrell, towering City league center, set the individual scoring pace with 11 points, it was Lore who was the outstanding player on the floor. The Ohio Wesleyan freshmen collected only four goals, but sank all from near mid court. His floor work was a feature of the game. Farrell proved valuable to the all stars with his great rebounding and under the basket work. Kinkade also collected eight points to tie Lore for scoring honors.

The freshmen got off to a early lead in the melee, but Farrell dropped in five points in rapid succession to give his team a 6-3 advantage mid-way in the frame. But the college players cut the All stars lead to a 8 to 7 count before the quarter ended.

And at this point Lore and Kinkade began hitting to enable the freshmen to shoot into an 18 to 12 lead that was never headed.

The winners, although limited to a goal and free throw in the third, went into the fourth quarter sporting a 21 to 17 lead. And they increased their advantage to a 29 to 17 count before Farrell dropped in a goal.

The all stars cut the lead to 29-22, but the advantage held by the visitors was too large to overcome.

Star For Losers.

Ed Chatlain of Wittenberg, Bill Bolantz of Kent State, Bob Spear of Depauw and Morgan, all gave good accounts of themselves.

Gene Brandon's defensive work for the all stars was outstanding along with Jack Miner and Harold Hayfer. Freddie Lewis followed Farrell in the scoring column with five points.

Harry Ross made his first appearance in the City league last night and held down a guard berth part of the game for the all stars.

Hallabrin, who witnessed the contest from the sidelines, was unable to play due to a recent tonsilectomy.

Sisler's In Line For Hall of Fame

NEW YORK—(AP)—The nation's baseball writers are wetting their pencils and preparing to enshrine another immortal in baseball's hal lof fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., so George Sisler, the old St. Louis Browns first baseman, might as well start trimming his cuffs and getting ready for the induction ceremony.

It is taken for granted that Sisler, who in 1922 established the highest batting average in the history of the American league (.41979) and had a 15-year big league mark of .344, will become the tenth member of the select Cooperstown colony.

MADISON RAMS INVADE LOGAN COURT TONIGHT

The Madison high school Rams left early today for Logan where they will meet Tommy Bender's cagers on the court tonight. Bender formerly coached at Mt. Gilead. Coach Al Fendrick took a squad consisting of Mel Harner, Joe Miller, Doug De Nero, Gene Harmon, and Bob and Bill Wilkins on the trip. The team will return home Sunday morning.

Tony Trims Zivic In Comeback Bout

NEW YORK —(AP)— Tony Canzoneri's comeback slate was as clean as a new calendar today. In order to start his new quest for gold and glory properly, old Tony climbed into the Hippodrome ring last night and punched Eddie Zivic determinedly for ten rounds and a decision.

Two months ago when Canzoneri came out of retirement, this same willowy welterweight was chosen for the first hurdle and Tony tripped in a ten-rounder at Scranton, Pa., now he's erased that score.

Tony won decisively but without showing any of the spark which once earned him the designation of the greatest fighter for his height and weight in the world.

Wildcats, Bombers Win League Games

The Wildcats and the Brown Bombers registered triumphs in the Senior colored basketball league at the Friendly House last night.

The Wildcats jumped into an early lead and had little trouble in downing the Bulldogs, 23 to 13, and the Bombers topped the Tigers, 19 to 17, after throttling a desperate last-period rally. Clemens led the Wildcats with eight points, and Twymar paced the Bombers with 10.

Galion Cagers Win Overtime

Secrest's Basket Defeats Columbus West, 32-30.

GALION — Coach John Burnison's Galion high North Central Ohio conference basketeers edged a strong Columbus West quintet, 32 to 30, in a "sudden death" overtime period in a non-league tussle here last night.

The Orangemen struck fast in the overtime when Dick Secrest slipped in an under-the-basket shot in the first 10 seconds.

Galion grabbed a 6-3 advantage in the opening period, but Columbus rallied to take a 17 to 14 lead at halftime. West retained a slim 27-26 lead going into the final frame, but the Orangemen rallied to knot the score at 30-all.

Bowl Gridders Await Kickoffs

300,000 Spectators Expected to See Post-Season Football Tussles on Monday.

(By Associated Press)

FOURTEEN football teams and perhaps 300,000 spectators will open the 1939 gridiron season—or close the 1938 season—Monday, and now that the ballyhoo has died down, it appears that all the teams involved are unusually well matched.

The "bear" stories of illness and injuries have been nearly forgotten and from all indications none of the teams will be seriously hampered Monday by the absence of stars.

Although there still remains some doubt as to the condition of Ki Aldrich of Texas Christian and Dan Hill of Duke, the only star who really seems likely to be kept idle is Bill Osmanski, Holy Cross fullback, who was due to perform in the East-West game at San Francisco. And since the eastern team has Wisconsin's Howie Weiss, it should get along all right.

Give Each Other Game.

Coaches Boy Neyland of Tennessee and Tom Stidham of Oklahoma, who have been "giving" each other the Miami Orange Bowl game, summed up the whole situation in yesterday's statements.

Said Neyland of his Vols: "They looked fairly good."

Said Stidham of his Sooners: "The boys will play their hearts out."

The same words might be applied to any of the teams in the other "bowl" games as well as those in the two all-star contests.

In brief, here are the highlights:

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Cal.: Duke vs. Southern California. Probable attendance 90,000. Favorite, Southern California. Criticism of Duke's choice because of the Blue Devils' weak opposition in compiling unbeaten-untied-unscored on record has died down but "scalper" sales are lagging because of prospect of defensive struggle. Sugar Bowl, New Orleans: Texas Christian vs. Carnegie Tech. Probable attendance 50,000, a southern record. Favorite, T. C. U. Plenty of scoring expected with the uncertainty concerning only Carnegie's ability to stop or match the Horned Frogs' famous passing and running attack featuring Davey O'Brien.

Orange Bowl, Miami, Fla.: Tennessee vs. Oklahoma. Probable attendance 30,000. Favorite, Tennessee. Aerial fireworks expected from both teams and little to choose between them.

Cotton Bowl, Dallas, Tex.: Texas Tech vs. St. Mary's. Probable attendance 30,000. Teams rated even. Pete Cawthorn has commented forcefully on how "bad" Tech has looked, which should put the Red Raiders on edge. St. Mary's faced much stronger opposition during the regular reason, with fair results.

Sun Bowl, El Paso, Tex.: New Mexico vs. Utah. Probable attendance 13,500. Teams rated even. Utah may be affected adversely by a recent trip to Hawaii, but plans to start "shock troops," including only one regular. Bill Dwyer, New Mexico ace, may not be effective after a long layoff.

59,000 to See Stars.

East-West, San Francisco: Probable attendance 59,000. No favorite in clash of all-star teams. A ball-carrying duel between Marshall Goldberg of Pitt and Vic Bottari of California is predicted.

Blue vs. Gray, Montgomery, Ala.: Probable attendance 14,000. Another no-choice class of stars. Both teams have been stressing offense in practice and using passes freely. Blues scrimmaged so hard yesterday coaches cut it short for fear of injuries.

Bushnell Five Wins School Tourney Title

Defeats West Fifth, 16-6, In Finals at Y.M.C.A.

Bushnell cagers were crowned champions of the Y. M. C. A. annual grade school tournament yesterday when they walloped West Fifth, 16 to 6, in the finals.

Permitting only two baskets, Bushnell, which staged a major upset in the semi-finals when it trimmed the heretofore unbeaten Bowman five, encountered little trouble with West Fifth.

Bushnell obtained a 4 to 1 lead in the initial period and did not allow a point in the second quarter as it increased its advantage to 8 to 1 at the half. The new champions coasted the rest of the way.

Brooks, who won the tournament individual championship with 30 points, tallied four times from the field to lead Bushnell. Bruckler of West Fifth, who finished second in the scoring with 26 points, was held to three points in the finals.

Bowman annexed the consolation championship by blanking Carpenter, 17 to 0, with Thomas leading the way with 11 points. Incidentally, this was the second time in the tournament that Carpenter failed to secure a field goal. In the first game, Carpenter defeated a foe, 3 to 0, on free throws.

The all-tournament team selected by officials consists of Brooks of Bushnell and J. Glenn of Hedges, forwards; Bruckler of West Fifth, center, and Zivkoff of West Fifth and Myers of Woodland, guards.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

SPORTSMANSHIP is easy to preach, but in many cases, it seems difficult to practice. Temptation stands as a boulder in the road to sportsmanship. There are two types of sportsmen in fishing and hunting. One is the man who will stand among his friends at the corner drugstore and criticize those who exceed the bag limit and then go to a stream or field and bring home enough game and fish to supply the market. The other type of sportsman is one who will study the game and fish laws and say to himself in field and stream, "No more, I have my limit," when the sun is still far above the hills.

DAVEY PROVES STEADY 'COPY'

Ohio Had Plenty Of Big News Stories In '38, Governor Was In Most of Them.

When the governor refused to allow representatives to attend a hearing on the charges, the board suspended its 50 per cent share of Ohio pension grants until December, when it investigated and found the state pension system was being administered along lines demanded by the board.

Davey in several bristling letters to Board Chairman Arthur J. Almeyer charged Ohio was being "robbed" and that the federal government was interfering with states' rights.

The "states' rights" statement and Davey's recent criticism of the New Deal were interpreted by some observers as indicative of his future political plans. He reportedly has told some friends that he hoped to run for president some time. He has announced no plans after leaving office Jan. 9.

Election, Hahn, investigations and pensions were listed by the editors as the leading stories. Davey was involved in all of them.

More Davey Headlines.

The governor also made headlines in his battle with the CIO. He ordered troops to stand by at Akron when a CIO rubber union called a strike at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company; he sent guardsmen to Middletown to protect the reopening of the CIO-strike-bound P. Lorillard Tobacco company; he charged that if Charles Sawyer were nominated and elected John L. Lewis would establish an industrial dictatorship in the Buckeye state.

One of the most spectacular tragedies in the state occurred on last May 24 when a 21-passenger luxury airliner crashed into a ravine near Cleveland, killing 10 persons. The United Airlines plane was just two minutes out of the Cleveland airport. Seven persons perished in Columbus as the result of a fire in a north-side rest home on Dec. 7.

$25,000,000 for Relief.

Ohio and its various subdivisions poured out more than $25,000,000 this year for direct poor relief. Millions additional were spent by federal government agencies. The problem of financing direct relief precipitated a bitter controversy in the legislature as rural and urban representatives clashed over the raising and appropriation of funds.

Like other states carved out of the Northwest Territory, Ohio participated this year in the observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the territory ordinance. Since Marietta was the first territory settlement, Ohio was honored by a visit there in September by President Roosevelt.

The president took occasion to compliment Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, New Deal Democrat, who later was defeated by Robert A. Taft, son of the late president and chief justice. Taft's rise to the senatorship was regarded as one of the most spectacular in Ohio political history.

A New Sport Star.

Johnny Vander Meer grabbed the nation's headlines when he pitched two consecutive "no-hit" games for the Cincinnati Reds against Boston and Brooklyn. It was the first time the feat had been accomplished.

Besides the Hahn case, one of biggest crime stories in the estimation of most editors was the slaying of Dr. Russell H. Bready on Dec. 2 near his Methodist Episcopal parsonage at Bainbridge. His son, Robert, who admitted fighting in the Spanish war for a thrill, was charged with murder. Robert told authorities he shot his father while the latter tried to "sober" him up.

A Pioneer Dies.

One of the pioneers of the rubber industry, Harvey S. Firestone, died Feb. 7, 1938. He was a close friend of Henry Ford and the late Thomas Edison.

Other leading stories listed by editors included: continued activity in Cleveland's mad torso killer; slaying of Shirley Woodburn, 6, in Cincinnati by Lindberg Trent, 16, now serving a life term; abduction of Ohio Highway Patrol Corp. Parker Powell near Lebanon and the prompt conviction of his four kidnapers, and the distribution of $7,500,000 in refunds by the Ohio Bell Telephone company after a long rate fight.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"What a perfectly wonderful plan!" Noel exclaimed enthusiastically. "And I know something of my father's artistic conscience. But—he must be terribly prejudiced against Mary to have planned this thing. Do you think"—he looked at Dicky with a patent desire for masculine confirmation of my optimistic prediction "—that his judgment may not be blinded by his—"

"Your father's artistic judgment was never blinded by anything, Noel," Dicky said emphatically. "That is his pride, his fetish, if you please. And if you want my opinion—"

"Oh! I do so much," Noel interrupted quickly.

"Then I'm telling you now that if Mary feeds him that role in the manner she just gave it to us, he'll eat it up ravenously, and another Veritzen star will be launched. He may make her life merry hell in sheer pique at being compelled to present her to his public, but he'll never rob his followers of the chance to see her."

Noel heaved a deep sigh of relief, and Mary's eyes were starry as she flashed across the room, and again hugged her uncle rapturously.

"You and Auntie Madge are the world's champion optimists," she said. "And it's up to little me to justify your optimism."

Dicky caught her cue and returned it deftly.

"It sure is, little one. How about it, Madge? Is she letter perfect? I don't mean literally—I mean the tempo."

"Very nearly," I answered slowly, judicially. "But—there are several places which ought to be ironed out, and we have so little time. We can't afford to take the slightest risk when there is so much at stake."

"I should think not," Noel said explosively. "I suppose, darling, he added regretfully, "that you shouldn't have interrupted your training to come here at all."

"So far we haven't lost anything," I put in hastily. "Yesterday morning, before we came, we went through a strenuous drill, and these two 'exhibition rehearsals,' to which you have just listened, were just what I wanted to judge what Mary would do with an audience."

"Well! you found out," Dicky commented with a grin. "The audience is simply petrified with approving astonishment. But you're the doctor, and if you say there are places to be ironed out, you ought to get out your little flat-iron. Don't you think so, nevvy?"

"By all means," Noel assented heartily. Then he added a query which made me give myself a metaphorical hug.

"Do you have to go back to the other hotel to do this—ironing? Couldn't you set up the ironing board over here?"

"Of course I can," I told him cordially. "We can accomplish every bit as much here as we can over there."

"I—I—suppose you'll want to begin right away." Noel said, patently trying hard to keep gloom out of his voice.

Million-Dollar Building Program Called Biggest Story Of Year In Mansfield.

plane in San Francisco and three hours later the liner crashed into a mountain.

Nearly three and a half months later the bodies of Mary Lou Dirlam, 19, and her brother, J. Tracy, 21, together with those of seven others, were found in the wreckage at the summit of the Buena Vista mountains. So ended a tragedy that stunned the entire city.

Less than a week after the plane crashed in March, J. N. Dirlam, father of the two plane victims, died without learning the fate of his two children.

Big Year for the Elephant.

After years of comparative security, the Democratic party found its reign challenged in November. The election indicated one thing—the electors have a bit of that feminine trait often referred to as a woman's prerogative—they can change their minds in a hurry.

While Democratic county candidates survived the landslide, the city and county gave virtually every Republican candidate for a state office a sizable majority. There was no doubt it was a big year for the elephant.

Another Scourge.

Just about two years after the city's typhoid fever epidemic, another scourge visited the city—smallpox. Early in 1938 the first case was reported and before the epidemic had run its course, 113 were taken ill in the city and county.

The outbreak made Mansfield and Richland county smallpox-conscious and as the result the health department vaccinated more than 20,000 persons while thousands of others were immunized by private physicians.

After bumping into a recession late in 1937 that threatened to outdepression the depression, industry and business staged a courageous uphill fight in 1938 to provide one of the major news stories of the year.

As 1938 ends there are many signs that indicate a bright 12 months lies ahead.

Relief—Its Problems.

Rated as the sixth major news story of 1938 was the relief puzzle—how to feed hungry mouths with an empty purse. The city found a partial solution to the problem by issuing $60,000 in bonds.

Relief costs for the year ran over $100,000 while the high month for city and county expenditures was $24,000. The number of families receiving direct aid also dropped from a peak of 1,139 to slightly over 500.

Work relief in the form of WPA projects provided jobs for as many as 1,300 at one time.

Remembering the Pioneers.

Exactly 150 years ago last spring a group of pioneers with covered wagons invaded a wilderness known as the Northwest Territory. Mansfield joined in the sesqui-centennial celebration and one of the largest crowds in the city's history, estimated from 30,000 to 50,000, watched the parade.

It was an unusual event, that developed into an unusual story and attracted a record-breaking crowd.

Eighth in the list of Mansfield's major news was tragic news—death in traffic. Yet there were encouraging signs discernible—the toll of dead was decreasing. Twenty-three lost their lives in Richland county traffic in 1938 as compared with 29 the year previous—a reduction of 20 per cent.

Water Makes News.

Water is an all-important commodity so improvements in a system that furnishes it makes important news. City council gave the Woodland district something it has been asking for many years—increased water pressure—by authorizing a $75,000 improvement program during 1938.

Winding up the year's "10 best stories" was the bright picture painted by the building industry. New building and repairs were estimated at $1,114,000, just $3,000 under the building permit total of $1,117,000 for 1937, which was one of Mansfield's banner years in building construction.

Intermingled with these events were the accounts of joys and sorrows, the squabbles and fights that come to an average American city of 40,000 in a 12-month period.

Death, which respects no classes and no ages, had its fling. It claimed some of the community's most prominent residents as well as its oldest.

From a news standpoint it was not a particularly sensational year, but it was a full one. There was no dearth of stories.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Jan. 1.

Sunday's horoscope betokens the fruition of high hopes and aspirations, with much major activity in employment, professional life and industry. There may be a reward of merit from superiors and those in power. There also is a definite sign of adventure and romance, with change and thrills.

Those whose birthday it is are assured an eventful and colorful year, with the promise of high hopes and dramatic adventures fulfilled. Promotion, preferment, stability of the fortunes (although these at times may fluctuate) are indicated. There may be definite change, new contacts and enlarged fields of operation, all tinged by the thrills of romance, travel and the unusual or even spectacular.

For Monday, Jan. 2.

Monday's astrological forecast is a peculiar and perplexing one, judging by the lunar aspects. There may be many singular and intriguing situations which may be dramatically and drastically dragged into the limelight. The young and romantic seem to be peculiarly affected, with elders interferring with beneficient but not welcome intrusion.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of surprising and high adventures, with dramatic episodes and probable romantic intrigue. However, such may be accompanied by interference and drastic opposition of elders and the well intentioned.

For Tuesday, Jan. 3.

An opportunity for hard work, with earnest purpose and sound objectives, is shown by this day's astral operations. This industry, steadfastness and responsibility are likely to arrest the attention and substantial support of elders or old-established institutions, with the result of placing matters on a stable basis.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year that offers much opportunity for putting the affairs on a sound basis and fortunes on a firm foundation, and a strengthening of the objectives. This opportunity may come through application, good judgment and practical methods, all of which should attract support from elders and solid institutions.

HIGHER PRICES RULE OPENING STOCK DEALINGS

Federal Reserve Board's Figures Prop Recovery Sentiment in Financial Quarters.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Slightly higher prices ruled in today's early stock market dealings.

At a quiet opening improvement was registered for Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, N. Y. Central, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Douglas Aircraft and Consolidated Edison.

Propping recovery sentiment in financial quarters was figures of the federal reserve board disclosing a sharp rise in department store sales for the week ended Dec. 24.

Broadening of consumer demand was exemplified by a rush of purchasers in New York's Worth street print cloth market yesterday. The unexpected burst of activity in this textile center carried sales above the 20,000,000-yard mark. Ordinarily, it was recalled, the week between Christmas and New Year's day in this market is the dullest of the year.

No Resolutions for New Year But Several Hopes and Some Return Promises

—By JANE WILLIAMS

OLD MOTHER HUBBARD went to the cupboard to get herself a New Year resolution; when she got there the cupboard was bare and so-o-o—she had none to break—

The Williams' cupboard is beautifully bare of resolutions this New Year. Which is in sharp contrast to the years—long gone—when I could think up more resolutions. Good ones, too. Swell ones to bust into smithereens later.

But one of the things that come with advancing years is knowledge of the futility of saying 'I WILL do thus-and-so" or "I will NOT do so-and-thus," knowing full well that no human being can say definitely today what he will do tomorrow.

And when 1939 sticks its frost-bitten nose out of the first sheet of the new calendar, I shall not thrust a handful of resolutions in its face, but shall say:

"Hello, you! I hope you'll be as good to me as your recent antecedents have been: I hope you'll be kind to my family and I pray that you're considerate of my country and my people and keep them safe from the turmoils and the strife that beset other countries, and in return—well, I'm not making any promises or resolutions, but I'll do my darndest to deserve your consideration."

A LOT of people were mildly indignant over Brenda Frazier's widely publicized coming out party at the Ritz-Carlton because something between fifty and seventy-five thousand dollars was spent on it. They reasoned, and rightly, that there are several million human beings in America who are underfed and underclothed, and that it was ridiculous for one girl, pretty and useless, to throw $75,000 away on a party.

But Brenda's many dollars were not squandered nor thrown away. They were divided up among men and women who work for a living—musicians, caterers, hotel servants, cooks, decorators and trades people. And think of the money that was spent for clothes, for furs and flowers, so that women might shine at the party and their men folks might feel important!

AND think of the news reporters who "covered" the party. It gave them opportunity to get such expressions as "in a Neo-Byzantine setting of gold and moonlight" off their chests. Probably some poor, hardworking reporter had that expression in her system for years and this was her first chance to spring it on an enthralled world of readers.

And so you can bet that a lot of wage earners said "God bless Glamour Gal No. 1" even though the unthinking said quite the opposite—changing just one word, maybe.

THE ranking movie favorites for 1938, according to Hollywood's box office figures—and the box office is the only truthful, unprejudiced barometer of popularity—were in the following order: Shirley Temple (who has held first place for four years), Clark Gable, Sonja Henie, Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Robert Taylor, Myrna Loy, Jane Withers, Alice Faye and Tyrone Power.

Outside of Gable, Miss Loy and Tracy, all of them are practically newcomers who have sprung up in the last few years, and not a glamour girl among them, with the possible exception of Miss Faye. But they all have one thing in common—a tremendous and sweeping vitality, and most of them have youth and a sparkling gaiety. Which should tell the movie-makers that in these years of uncertainty and foreboding audiences want just those qualities in their entertainment.

TWO deaths in Hollywood this week rated only small paragraphs, but once they would have been front page headline stories. They were Harry Myers, the "Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court," and Florence Lawrence who was the first great woman star. She was the beloved "Biograph Girl" of the first nickelodeons and tossed off great gobs of celluloid romance and thrills at five cents per audience head. She was the Joan Crawford, the Margaret Sullavan, the Alice Faye of her day—but she killed herself because she was poor and alone and forgotten. And Harry Myers depended upon the charity of his friends.

So that being the biggest box office stars of this year doesn't necessarily mean security for future years.

REMIND me some time to "bust off" about the way the state highway patrol officers deliberately thumb their noses at our city traffic regulations. Saw them crash a red light the other day for no apparent reason and practically any noon hour you will find their car either parked in the safety zone at the northwest corner of Park and Walnut, or double parked there, while the boys eat their luncheons in nearby restaurants. Which certainly gripes the run-of-the-mine citizens who have had to pay traffic fines for the same stunts.

Peak Year for Building Predicted for '39

BUSINESS GAINS, WATER PROJECT SEEN AS BIG AIDS

Construction In Past Year Passes $1,100,000 Mark, Only $3,000 Under '37.

A new peak in construction during 1939 was predicted for Mansfield today as building valuations of the past year, despite a slump in general business, remained on a level with 1937, one of the best years in the building industry since the late 20's.

The predictions were made by Mansfield contractors and building materials dealers who based their opinions on a last quarter building program that boosted valuations for 1938 within $3,000 of the previous year's figures.

Leaders in the building industry expressed the belief that the new Woodland water improvement which has increased water pressure in southwestern part of the city would give impetus to new home construction in that section.

They also gave a revival of business during the last quarter of the year and the change in conditions generally as reasons to expect an "unusually good building year" during 1939.

Paces Banner 1937 Figures.

The investment in new building in Mansfield during 1938 totaled $1,144,052, or only $3,000 less than the $1,117,179 set in 1937 which was surpassed only by 1936 figures in the last 10 years.

The seasonal slump in building activities which usually occurs during the last quarter, held up consistently the past three months with that of the summer months. April and May are considered peak construction months in the building trade.

The major portion of the valuation was in new residences, the value of which was estimated at $757,850 for the 132 new homes built. This was $89,000 less than was spent for the 137 homes constructed in 1937.

During the year new building was paced by the construction of a new $100,000 theater building by the Constant theater circuit on South Park street at Diamond street; $80,000 addition to the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, a $22,000 garage and office building of the Nickles bakery and a $15,000 church.

JAIL 2 IN AGED MAN'S SLAYING

Warrant Charges Pair Killed Ohio Recluse, 83, But Failed To Get $3,500 Hoard.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Two men faced murder charges today in connection with the slaying of an 83-year-old recluse who successfully hid a $3,500 hoard from his assailants.

The first booked as Andrew Davis, was taken into custody shortly after the battered body of Jacob Fishbach was found in his cabin east of here, and the second, listed as Philip Gaskins, 66, alias Frank Davis, was arrested and charged in a state warrant late last night in Huntington, W. Va. George Fishbach, a brother of the slain man, had sworn out warrents against both men

Prosecutor Frank A. Roberts of adjoining Clermont county said Gaskins was a nephew of Fishbach, known in Huntington as Frank Davis, a clothing salesman. He added that it had been established definitely that Andrew Davis and Gaskins "were the last men seen with Fishbach before he was found dead."

Roberts said Gaskins probably would be taken to Batavia, Clermont county seat, Sunday.

Fishbach's body was discovered Thursday. A bloodstained iron bar lay nearby with his loaded shotgun. His bed ticking had been torn open in an apparent hunt for money.

Yesterday deputies found the $3,448 in tin cans beneath the cabin floor.

EFFINGER TAKEN TO MICHIGAN TO FACE BLACK LEGION CHARGE

(By Associated Press)

LIMA—Virgil F. Effinger, accused head of the Black Legion, was taken from the Allen county jail early today and returned to Michigan to face charges of bomb possession and criminal syndicalism.

Effinger was placed aboard a train shortly after 3:30 a. m., and Michigan authorities who came here for him said they expected him to be arraigned in Detroit before noon.

He was given over after Common Pleas Judge E. E. Everett declined a stay of the extradition order requested by Effinger's counsel.

The state supreme court Wednesday refused Effinger a rehearing and the reputed head of the hooded order surrendered to Sheriff William V. Daly yesterday and was lodged in Allen county jail. He had been at liberty under $5,000 bond.

Judge Everett described Effinger's fight of more than two years to escape extradition as merely the preliminary to the actual trial.

"If the preliminaries are carried on like this much longer, there is no such thing as justice in the United States," said the jurist.

Effinger disappeared from an extradition hearing at Columbus Aug. 25, 1936, but surrendered on Dec. 3, 1937, when Police Chief Ward Taylor and a deputy sheriff found him at his home.

Nearly 50 Black Legion members were convicted in Michigan during a state investigation of the secret order after its existence was uncovered through inquiry into the slaying of Charles A. Poole in May, 1936.

Eight persons were sentenced to life imprisonment in the Poole death and five received similar sentences in the "target practice" killing of Silas Coleman, colored war veteran.

Up and Down THE STREET

By strange coincidence, a full-page picture of W. M. Case, 84-year-old farmer who is charged with the Christmas tree slaying of an unemployed Lorain county father, appears in the January issue of the American magazine in the publication's monthly feature, "America's Most Interesting People." The photo shows Case besides ones of his two-ton trees, The article tells how the aged farmer planted 1,000 seedlings 60 years ago and is now cashing in on his investment. It was the theft of one of his trees that resulted in Case killing a man a few days before Christmas.

While workmen made their spacious headquarters into nine school classrooms, county Republicans today had moved into a small, not too bright corner of the Warner building on North Main street. With the large auditorium in the building rented as a temporary school for John Simpson Junior high pupils, the party leaders had to take what was left of the room. "Here we win our first victory in several years, and then move into the smallest quarters in recent years," Republican Ralph Hughes said jokingly.

Bobbie, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Coleman of Crestline, has been in the film city three months.

PROMISES TO BARE DETAILS OF DRUG CASE

Judge Thwarts Receivership For McKesson Company By Denying Writ.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—One of his brothers will reveal the entire inside story of the fantastic swindling activities of the late "F. Donald Coster" as president of the huge McKesson & Robbins drug firm, it was reported today.

The New York Journal and American said the brother has informed federal authorities he is willing to begin the fantastic recital today, laying bare the exploits of one of the world's most spectacular swindlers.

The surviving brothers of "Coster" whose real name was Philip Musica—are Arthur, George and Robert Musica. All are held on charges of violating the securities exchange laws.

One Agrees To Talk.

Ever since "Coster's" fraudulent financial empire crashed and he committed suicide, his brothers have maintained silence. But it is expected now that one has agreed to talk, federal investigators will be aided greatly in their task of piecing together the full history of "Coster's" dramatic career.

Meanwhile, a fight over jurisdiction in reorganization of McKesson & Robbins, which was looted of more than $18,000,000 by "Coster" before he took his life at Fairfield, Conn., was averted when Federal Judge Huncks in New Haven, Conn., dismissed a writ which sought to throw the concern into involuntary bankruptcy.

Shortly afterward, it was announced in New York that a committee to protect common stock holders in the concern was being formed. The committeemen are U. S. Senator Lonergan of Connecticut; J. S. Granger and F. L. Ross, New York brokers; and George L. Le Blanc, director of the American Machine & Metals Co.

The committee announced it hoped to force any persons who profited by Musica's defalcations to make restitution.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Criticism of President No Sign of Disloyalty to American Government

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Some of our people lately have come to think that it is disloyal to the country to criticize the errors of the national administration and to wage controversies between groups within the population because this gives aid and comfort to the enemy, being loudly exploited in their press as evidence of the failure of our kind of government.

I argue that the reverse is true, that the disunity is no more than skin deep and that the Germans and Italians deceive themselves in believing that democracy is decadent because it indulges in self-criticism. In fact, this criticism, including even silly and petty fault-finding as well as sound and wise opposition, proves the vitality of the American system and helps to preserve it. And anyone who would pipe it down to make an impression in the camp of the enemy is yielding to the same idea that makes Hitler and Mussolini sacred names in the crazy countries.

If dissent and opposition were waived here in order that we might make a front, that would call for acceptance of the judgment of a very small group of officials dominated by one man who himself has indicated no desire for such responsibility, although some Americans think he has

Mr. Roosevelt leans heavily against his opposition, but if it were suddenly withdrawn he might fall on his face, and all of us with him, and in that case the enemy would have cause for rejoicing.

I have read that anyone who has criticized the New Deal or the president has no right to resent insulting observations about the American government and the president in the press of Germany and Italy. This forgets, however, that those are not free papers but weapons, like guns, which the two head men use to toss cracks at a nation with which their countries are on nominally peaceful terms.

If Cordell Hull were to call Italy a land of gangsters that would be no more official than the same insult to this country published repeatedly in the Italian papers.

A free country is like a family whose members have differences of opinion and sometimes get into rousing scraps if they are at all human, in the course of which they pop off with many candid, if intemperate, remarks.

Being all in the family, such utterances are privileged and usually are resented much less than the same cracks from an outsider. In fact, let an outsider repeat the same remarks and the family's impulse is to close up and belt him.

To just what extent would it be safe to go in withholding criticism of government policies and declarations of important individuals in the privacy of the family circle? No line is drawn so if people began to choke back they might find themselves ignoring errors which seemed disastrous to them.

Criticism of the New Deal, dislike of and opposition to President Roosevelt and his policies do not constitute disloyalty to the United States, but, on the contrary, serve as regular workouts for our democracy.

Shot Fired In Paris Sets Off Anti-Jewish Campaign In Hitler's Naziland.

By VOLTA TORREY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Republicans went "woo, woo!" at the voters and won in November, 1938. Elections hoisted their U. S. senate standing to 23 (a gain of 8), their house strength to 170 (a gain of 82), and gave 'em 17 out of 32 open gubernatorial jobs.

Chapter 11 Of a Month-by-Month Review Of 1938

Front pages were enlivened by new faces such as those of Senators-Elect Taft of Ohio and Downey of California and Governors-Elect Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Vanderbilt of Rhode Island, James of Pennsylvania, Heil of Wisconsin, and Stassen of Minnesota.

Michigan's Murphy and other liberals lost. Downed, too, was California's $30-Thursday dream.

Democrats still were supreme—in New York, they defeated Dewey—but Republican Program Projector Glenn Frank found "the drift toward a virtually one-party nation" stopped, and the stock mart perked up the day after the election.

Shot Heard 'Round World.

The day before America balloted, Herschel Grynszpan, 17, a Jew, shot and killed a German embassy aide in Paris. And in Germany a super-program ensued, so shocking that President Roosevelt "could scarcely believe that such things could occur in a 20th century civilization." Nazis cursed their critics and fined the Jewish people $400,000,000 for Grynszpan's gunmanship.

American Ambassador Wilson was called home to report on the Reich's rioting—and Der Fuehrer yanked his envoy back from Washington to explain Mr. Roosevelt's "queer attitude."

Uncle Sam and muddling John Bull, meanwhile, signed a trade treaty. King George said he and the queen would be in Washington next June. Both English-speaking powers tackled the German-Jewish refugee issue. After abandoning plans for splitting up Palestine. Landlord Chamberlain suggested sanctuaries for the Jews in South America and Africa—and the idea of letting them have land that Germany used to own made Berlin's blood boil.

'The Ramparts We Watch.'

By Armistice day, the world was blowing about $20,000,000,000 a year to beat plowshares into swords, and Monroe Doctrine fences were being mended: Cuba's Colonel-in-Chief Fulgencio Batista was honored in Washington. Mexico agreed to begin paying next year for land taken from U. S. citizens. And Secretary of State Hull, with a delegation that included Alf Landon and John L. Lewis's daughter, sailed for a Pan-American pow-wow.

Germany and France agreed to let their well-fortified frontier stand. Britain's good-will deal with Italy went into effect. Chamberlain went to Paris to consult labor-lambasted Premier Daladier. And Italian deputies demonstrated for French Tunisia.

To Egypt's teen-aged king and queen, a princess was born. And Turkey mourned its modernizer, Kamal Ataturk.

The Changing Scene.

Americans learned to play "Chinese checkers," cheered a Broadway biography of Abe Lincoln, and went to auto shows. The Dionne quintuplets lost their tonsils. Robert Irwin, Manhattan murderer of an artists' model, got a 139-year sentence.

Don Budge turned pro. Midwest and southern football stars shone brightest.

Railroad pay-cut orders were canceled. CIO became the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Attorney General Cummings' resignation was revealed, and there were rumors of other cabinet substitutions.

On Thanksgiving, the president quoted Eddie Cantor: "I am thankful I can live in a country where all leaders can sit down . . . and carve up a turkey instead of a map."

NEW NOVEL BY EDITH WHARTON TOPS BOOKLIST

'The Buccaneers' Scintillating Story of 19th Century Society, Manners.

"The Buccaneers," by Edith Wharton, greatest of American women novelists, heads the fiction list at the Mansfield Public library this week-end. It displays to advantage this novelist's superb command of English, her subtle knowledge of men and women and her familiarity with the nineteenth century society and manners.

"The Buccaneers" is the story of three American families with beautiful daughters, whom failing to be accepted in the elite of Newport and New York City of the 1870's, journey to England to attempt social invasion of that land of entrenched aristocracy.

"We Lived As Children" by Catherine Hulme, is the portrait of an American family in San Francisco from the days of the earthquake to the time of the World war. "Fruit In Season" by Anthony Thorne, tells the story of a fine old English manor house and the family that inherited it.

Other fiction this week is "A Peddler's Pack" by Goudge; "Pray For The Wanderer," by O'Brien; "Death Sends A Cable," Yates; "Whispering Ear," Clason; and "Flying Yorkshiremen," by Eric Knight.

Corrigan Turns Author.

An interesting volume among the new non-fiction is Douglas "Wrong Way" Corrigan's "That's My Story," which is the autobiography of the Irishman who flew from New York for California and landed instead in Ireland. The story is being published serially in a weekly magazine. This is a self-written story of the young flier. It is not in a polished, literary manner, but it has charm and conviction even in its awkward construction, and is warm and human.

"Disaster Fighters" by Fairfax Downey tells the story of the great natural catastrophes which have scourged the nations during the last half century. Starting with the great Michigan forest fires in 1881, he carries the story of disasters down to the Texas school explosion of 1937. Parallel with this historical data is the story of the Red Cross and its fight against disaster.

Another autobiography by a doctor "I Swear By Appolo" is the life of medical adventure which William Edmund Aughinbaugh, M. D., has lived. Here is a doctor who went about his profession in an efficient manner but who had an eye for the unusual and adventurous.

"While England Slept."

"While England Slept," by Winston Churchhill, is, as may be guessed from the title, the English statesman's public pronouncements against the policies of his country in foreign affairs, a survey of world affairs and deals largely with the rearmament of Germany, and the threat of this to Great Britain.

Other non-fiction for the week includes "Powder River" by Maxwell Struthers Burt. "Annapolis Today" by Banning; "Guiding Human Misfits," Adler; "Airplane Maintenance," Younger, Bonnalie and Ward; "Eight Decades," Repplier; "Wit, Wisdom and Eloquence," Gray; "Plays of Euripides," "Life of Vice-Admiral Bligh," Mackaness; "Andre Gide," Pierre-Quint; "Secret Agent of Japan," Vespa; "Imperial Japan, 1926-1938," Young; "Who Rules America?" McConaughy.

The new books are being displayed today instead of Saturday and will be released for circulation tomorrow instead of Monday because of the New Year holiday.

In the trio of animals from the Rigby herd, all younger cows, Golden Victoria of Balgreen, only two and one-half years old, produced 8,794 pounds of milk and 374 pounds of butterfat in 365 days. The Rigby cows established their records in a different classification.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow and Monday—help start 1939 off to a good traffic record.

Now that the world didn't come to an end on Dec. 26, what's the next nitwit prediction to that effect?

According to a sociologist, "this generation of hard drinkers is the last"—but not if Ohio liquor laws can prevent it.

New Year Gives Promise of Progress

NOW that 1938 is about to pass out, it can be viewed in retrospect as a year devoted to preparation for later accomplishments, more than as a period of actual progress.

In the complicated machinery of a great nation, conditions have developed in recent years which make individual welfare largely dependent on processes of government.

The movement of government in the United States during the past six years, while possibly honestly intended to provide a "more abundant life" to unaccustomed millions, has succeeded only in making life more difficult, and the future less assured, for the vastly more millions of persons who had been accustomed to supporting themselves and families, and laying aside a little surplus to meet future needs.

In disregard of principles upon which the United States progressed rapidly through many years and attained higher standards of living for productive workers than exist anywhere else in the world, the present federal administration has succeeded only in creating dissension, arousing false hopes by promulgation of visionary schemes, causing distrust among those upon whom dependence must be placed for future progress, and indulging in an orgy of extravagant and wasteful spending that overburdens present taxpayers and mortgages the earnings of children yet unborn.

Return to sounder thinking, as evidenced by November election results in many parts of the country, indicates a trend toward more practical approach to solution of national problems than has been noted in 1938 or the immediately preceding years.

There is much that can be done in 1939 in advancing the welfare of the American people as a whole, looking more particularly to providing increased opportunities in private employment for all persons who are able and willing to do some kind of necessary work, and planning to supply the needs of comfortable living for aged dependents and those who, from physical or mental handicaps, are classed as unemployables.

But whatever substantial advancement is made along these lines must come through the leadership of practical-minded, forward-looking Americans who are able to formulate and carry through a workable program, rather than visionary theorists or radical propagandists of alien isms.

* * * * *

VIEWED locally, the coming year is approached with considerable optimism—influenced, of course, by state, national and world conditions in which this city must share but cannot control.

Industrial employment, an important factor in Mansfield, has shown gratifying gains during the final months of the year, with prospects of continued betterment into the new year.

Employer-employe relationships in Mansfield have evidenced a friendly understanding of mutual interests, free from the disturbing influences of outside agitators, and this has had a stabilizing and confidence-inspiring effect throughout a difficult year, with promise of extending into the future.

Residential building, which has gone forward nicely in Mansfield this year, will likely be given added impetus in 1939, with inexpensive suburban homes gaining in favor and apartment houses coming nearer to meeting the city's requirements. Construction and remodeling of public schools will also stimulate employment in the building trades through the year.

All in all, 1939 should be a good year in Mansfield—if everyone will help in making it so.

To the Credit of Richland County.

WITHOUT intended reflection on people of other Ohio counties, it is pleasing to note that Richland county again takes first place in per capita memberships in the Red Cross.

Readiness to support such a humanitarian organization as the Red Cross indicates not only an appreciation of the need of co-operation in service to others but also evidences possession of some of the finest traits of human character.

There are some, unfortunately, who cannot afford to pay the $1 annual membership fee, but all whose thoughts are in accord with the purposes of the Red Cross are entitled to share in the credit reflected by support of this great organization.

Financial support of the Red Cross is essential, of course, but the urge which induces such support is even more important.

Remember to Feed Birds.

WHILE some of the birds common to Ohio seek warmer climate for the winter, others stay in their familiar surroundings throughout the year and have a hard time finding sufficient food when their customary feeding places are covered with snow or ice.

Says a bulletin from the Ohio division of conservation: "City dwellers can do their part for the pleasure and benefit which song and insectivorous birds give them, by putting their old bread crusts and bits of suet where the birds can get them. Try feeding the birds in your own back yards and see how much pleasure you derive from watching their antics, and at the same time help preserve them from the rigors of winter."

A Detroit psychiatrist advises that a "jitterbug" should be encouraged to dance all he can, but never permitted to drive a car—but it appears that some of them ARE driving cars.

A Florida young man yawned almost constantly for six days—but it didn't seem unusual until about the third day.

Hazing methods must have changed as a southern school designates it as "mental cruelty."

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — The expected independent disposition of the new congress presents a problem for the president as well as his leaders. He is for that reason surrendering no weapons that may be useful in a pinch.

That is a reasonable explanation to offer for his withholding of the score or more of important appointments pending these many months. The type of appointments held in the executive bag are not the usual flow of patronage. They are super-gifts far beyond the realm of postmasters and traveling representatives of the federal trade commission.

Strategy.

TO SOME it is sacrilege to talk of a supreme court appointment in the same sentence with patronage, but such offices are strategic weapons in the hands of a president faced by a laggard or unruly congress.

He doesn't need to make the appointment in order to persuade a particular congressman to vote this way or that on a piece of legislation desired by the administration. He may fill a vacancy with a certain type of candidate simply to indicate his pleasure or displeasure with congressional action.

Certain it is that the appointment of Senator Black to the supreme court was more widely interpreted as a whack at the senate for defeating the court bill than as a recognition of Black's attainments as a jurist.

The kind of appointments the president has in reserve are these: a supreme court justice to succeed the late Justice Cardozo, an ambassador to Russia, ministers to Canada and Iran (Persia to me and you), a comptroller general, three circuit court justices, one District of Columbia judge, 16 district judges, eight district attorneys, one member of the federal reserve board, one federal power commissioner, two interstate commerce commissioners, one member of the federal home loan bank board, one TVA director, one District of Columbia commissioner, and no end of subordinate positions likely to grow out of the shift of Harry Hopkins to the cabinet as secretary of commerce.

A Nice Help.

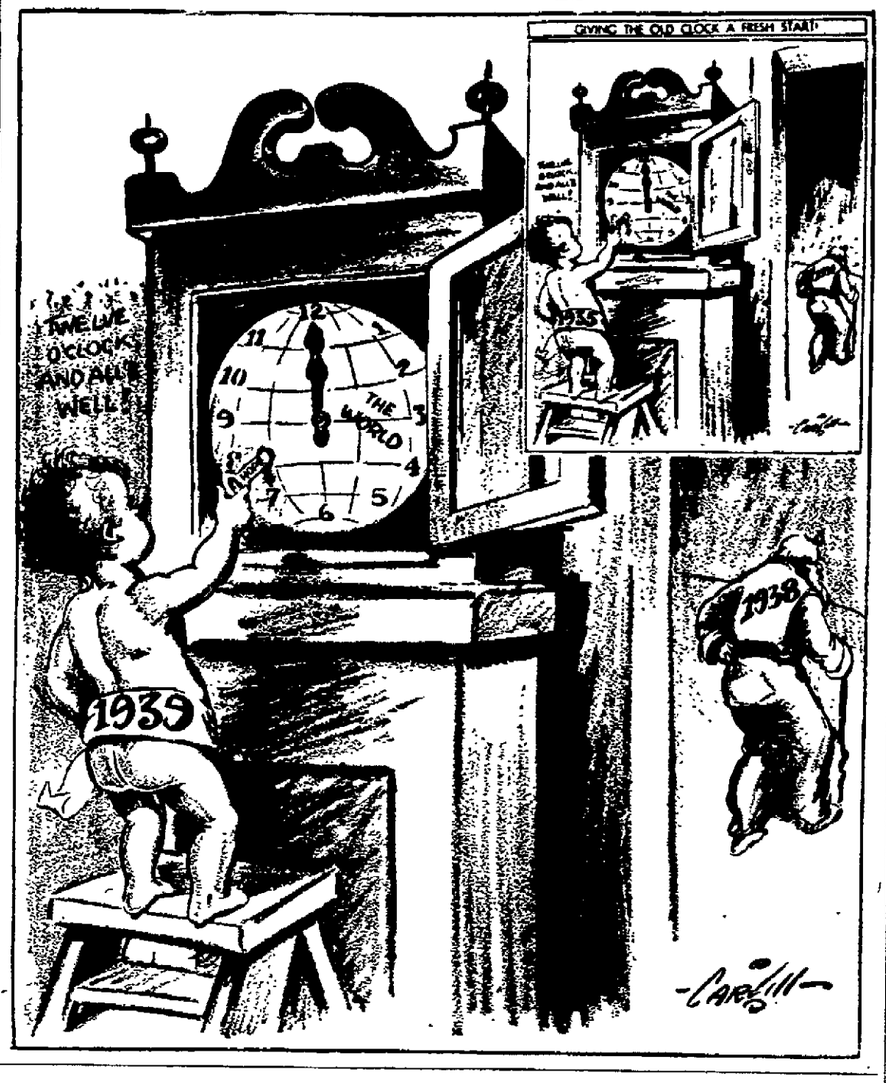
WITH the exception of some of the district attorney posts, these jobs all pay $10,000 and up, which is nice money even measured in terms of federal patronage.

There are those in congress who object to the use of these appointments as "persuaders," particularly in the case of court appointments. But they recognize their weight.

Of course there are hazards to a president in having so many places to fill. Astute politicians insist that one appointment makes one insincere friend and 100 unregenerate enemies.

Nevertheless it is well recognized here that a president with a flock of appointmnts to make is in a better position than one without any. And the president has at his command, as the new congress convenes, a fistful rivaling in quality the list he had to fill when he took office.

HISTORY REPEATS



Hopkins Unfitted For Cabinet Job

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Harry L. Hopkins is tackling plenty of difficulties in his new post as secretary of commerce. To begin with, his appointment had no more than been announced before it began to be hinted that he might find trouble in getting himself confirmed by the Senate. Regardless of the merits of these suggestions, they just go to show that President Roosevelt's selection of him for a cabinet berth by no means was unanimously popular. Moreover, it has been common talk that he had to have a cabinet portfolio in order to get him out of the WPA picture when congress starts investigating charges of improper politics in said WPA during his rulership of same.

Harry Hopkins

But supposing that some of such charges are substantiated? How will "Harry the Hop" be relieved of responsibility simply on the ground that he subsequently has been boosted into a higher position? It would seem to me that, the greater his current prominence, the more he will be embarrassed by flaws, if any, in his past record. I emphasize—"if any." I do not intimate that there ARE any. But if there are, I do not see how his promotion will help him.

Additionally, what does Hopkins know about commerce? Approximately as much as I do, I should guess.

I am quite familiar with his past. He is a native of my old home town—Sioux City, Iowa. He was too young for me to associate with, but I am acquainted with what our mutual home folks say concerning him. He is a temperamental welfare worker. In olden days he would have been the local poormaster. This was a worthy stunt. Far be it from me to belittle it. "Hoppy," as he was called out in "Soox City," glorified it—inflated it to national proportions.

All O. K.! I indorse every bit of it.

But how does it make Harry a commercial expert?

Ex-Daniel C. Roper.

Retiring Commerce Secretary Daniel C. Roper was not a commercial expert, either.

Theoretically he was a kind of a liaison officer between northern business and industry and agriculture and southern ditto. The truth is, he came up to Washington from South Carolina in 1892 and has been engaged ever since in nothing except politics, which he was good at.

"Uncle Dan" is an exceedingly likable old fellow. But as a secretary of commerce? That is another matter. He never pretended to understand a thing about business. All the same, there was widespread personal regret in Washington at his departure.

Hopkins likewise is popular among the boys who have had intimate contacts with him. The journalistic gang swears by him. But, what the heck does he know about commerce?

Harrington and Williams.

The choice of Col. F. C. ("Pink") Harrington as Hopkins' WPA successor is well received on all hands.

As an army officer, conservatives accept him as something of a conservative; liberals accept him as a wonderfully liberal army officer. In the engineering handling of WPA projects there has not been a word of adverse criticism of him.

Health Advice

Arthritis, the Great American Disease.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE curse of the locomotor system of the body is the joints. Barring accidents and a few rare diseases, most of us get through life without ever hearing from our bones, muscles or tendons. But arthritis, the inflammation of the joints, is likely to hit all of us at some time or other if we live long enough.

It has been estimated that two per cent of the population is sick all the time. It is not always the same people, of course. John Jones has pneumonia and is part of the two per cent for a while. Then he gets well and resigns his place to Henry Smith. This fluctuating personnel in the acute diseases, however, surmounts a basis of chronic ailments—people who remain in the two per cent column year after year.

Largest Number.

And of these chronic patients, it is estimated that those with arthritis constitute the largest number.

The symptoms of arthritis are pain, swelling, stiffness and disability of one or more joints. There are many forms of arthritis, including acute arthritis, which we understand far better than we do the chronic kind. Acute arthritis is always an infection, and usually terminates favorably.

Many doctors think that all chronic arthritis is infectious, also. Others think that some cases are nutritional in origin. Two main forms of arthritis occur. One occurs mostly in young adults, affects many joints and is extremely crippling. The other occurs in older people, affects one or a few joints, and usually runs a course of about a year, leaving only slight stiffness behind. It frequently affects the spine and leaves a "poker back."

The first form—that occurring in young people—is called arthritis deformans. Few measures in treatment are beneficial. Most of the good results claimed for different remedies have been successful in the latter form.

Of those remedies, the name is legion. As one of my friends who has handled his share of arthritis patients said, "If all the so-called cures for arthritis were laid end to end, every five minutes they would extend from here back to the birth of Job."

The arthritic patient must make up his mind that no one treatment is going to magically cure him. It is a complex disorder and many parts of the body—the digestive tract, the blood, the sinuses, the tonsils, as well as the joints—are out of line.

Still remain the three great standbys of treatment:

Rest. Psychology. Heat.

If the arthritis is going to get well, it tends to get well of itself. Rest will help this. Encouragement—psychology—the patient with arthritis always needs. And heat relieves the pain even if it does not cure, and really promotes the healing process in all cases.

Nineteen Hundred Thirty-Nine

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

The New Year's clean white page
is spread
Before us—shall we spill
Our blood in war or mar it, let
Men's greed its chapter fill?

God grant us peace and sanity
In these twelve months to come;
May they not know the slaughter
toll
Of battle's crimson sum.

And yet if we are called to take
Our stand when truth is dragged
From her white pedestal in mire,
Let heart's that never lagged

In courage once again beat high,
For it is true today
As in times past that honor is
The best . . . the finest way.

Oh troubled heart beset with fears
Amid the tumult's din,
Told fast to prayer, to faith and love
As this New Year comes in.

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

HERE'S a check-list of things to remember about the year that goes into history this week-end:

Abroad: Britain and France, fearing German bombs, let Hitler take Austria and, at the Munich conference, helped give him a rich slice of Czechoslovakia. Poland and Hungary got some Czech land, too. Nazi salesmen pushed east. The French People's Front collapsed and Premier Daladier, moving toward strong-man rule, joined British Prime Minister Chamberlain in efforts to appease the dictators. Italy unofficially demanded a new deal on African colonies from France. Jews suffered new hardships in Germany, Italy, Hungary and Rumania.

Wars: Japan's army, though pestered by guerrillas, drove deeper into China; Canton and Hankow fell and Chiang Kai-shek only moved farther west; Nippon slammed the "open door" on Uncle Sam's foot. Despite Spanish Insurgent gains, hungry Loyalists refused to say "uncle." British tommies crushed an Arab-Jew civil war in Palestine. Russia and Japan battled briefly in the far east.

Politics: Democrats in the 75th congress split, conservatives joining Republicans to pigeon-hole the president's reorganization bill. New Dealers lost three out of four primary-election attempts to "purge" the Democratic party of anti-administration congressmen. The November elections gave Republicans 89 new congressmen and 11 new governors, but left Democrats a 60% majority in the 76th congress.

Government: Congress broke all records for spending by laying out $12,000,000,000 for the fiscal year that ends next June 30. Relief and defense costs boosted the national debt toward an all-time peak of $40,000,000,000. Capitol Hill sleuths dug up headlines about un-Americanism, TVA, monopoly, unfair electioneering and industrial profit-sharing.

Business: Prodded by the government's $5,000,000,000 lend-spend program, industry perked up in the second six months. Housing led the parade. By December many barometers had climbed back to late 1937 levels, but most remained slightly under the recovery peaks touched 18 months ago. National income was estimated as the highest, except for last year, since 1930.

Labor: Fewer workers went on strike than in 1937, but more went on relief. Unemployment climbed last spring, but dropped during the fall. The government put a floor under wages and a ceiling over hours in interstate commerce. AFL and CIO, organized permanently, continued labor's civil war despite peace pleas from President Roosevelt.

Farming: The rains came and the sun shone; so, despite government-sponsored acreage limitation, bumper crops (and the recession in consumer buying power) drove produce prices 22% below the 1937 average. Farm income was estimated at $7,625,000,000, down 11% from last year.

Crime: Richard Whitney, ex-president of the N. Y. Stock Exchange, went to prison for stealing his customers' securities. Philip Musica, pre-war swindler, turned up as "F. Donald Coster," industrial tycoon, and killed himself when his phoney drug deals were discovered.

Aviation: Douglas Corrigan flew his winged jalopy "west" to Ireland. Howard Hughes & Co., sped 'round the world in three days, 19 hours. Warplane production boomed.

Science: A "Martian invasion" scared radio listeners. Doctors and the government discussed better medical care for poor people.

PREVIEW

Abroad: Few observers of foreign affairs will be surprised if Germany, in 1939, takes in Danzig and Memil. And Nazi and Fascist colonial ambitions are certain to cause headaches in Britain and France.

Business: "The coming year," says Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland economist, "promises to be a period of better employment, rising national income and increased volume of national production."

Aviation: The Civil Aeronautic Authority, Washington reports said this week, is making every effort to clear the way for the beginning of trans-Atlantic airplane service by next summer.

Farming: Hope for some reduction in crop surpluses appeared last week-end when the government reported drastically reduced winter wheat prospects for next year.

Abroad

Ickes Incident.

U. S.-German relations, Berlin papers said this week, are at the lowest point in years. Recent steps going down:

1. The "psychological break" in diplomatic relations, completed last month when Germany's ambassador to Washington was called home to explain America's "queer attitude" toward events in the Reich, after the U. S. ambassador to Berlin had been called home for "report and consultation" on the new Nazi program against Jews.

2. "The Ickes incident."

Germany, last week-end, asked the U. S. to apologize for a speech by Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, in which he referred to Herr Hitler as "a brutal dictator who . . . is robbing and torturing thousands of fellow human beings."

Summer Welles, acting secretary of state, not only refused to apologize, but said Ickes had voiced the sentiment of an overwhelming majority of this country's people.

With this parting shot, the Nazi propaganda ministry's spokesman thereupon moved to drop the matter: "We do not think utterances like Ickes's help to promote the spirit of Christmas. . . . We had our say and the American government had its."

Demonstration.

Most residents of the territory (4,875 square miles that Czechoslovakia gave Hungary in November are Hungarians. But many Slovaks live there, too. They objected to the cession, at the time, and have made noisy demands since then for return to their homeland. This week, at least one Slovak was killed and several were wounded when Hungarian policemen fired into a crowd of demonstrators.

Blood on the Snow.

There was talk, last week, of a Christmas truce in Spain's 29-month-old civil war. Instead, Insurgent Generalissimo Franco launched his long-expected drive against Loyalist-held Catalonia.

In sub-zero weather, half a million men in both armies were arrayed along a snow-covered, 125-mile front across northeastern Spain for perhaps the war's biggest battle. Insurgents held an advantage in superior supplies of food and war waterials, particularly field artillery, tanks and planes. But the Loyalists counted on the mountainous terrain, excellent defensive fortifications and superior man-power to prevent any quick break-through.

Biting off small chunks of territory, and then mopping up, Franco's men forced their way slowly eastward. In the first five days, casualties on both sides were well over 10,000 men. Hundreds more were sent to the rear with frost-bitten feet and hands.

Palestine Report.

In Bethlehem, where Christ was born, Christians observed his birthday under the protecting guns of British tommies, there to mop up Arab rebels. Elsewhere in Palestine, violence marred the holiday.

Crash Casualties.

1. Pennsylvania's retiring Gov. George Earle, and his wife and two friends, were slightly injured on Christmas when the governor's plane nosed over as he landed at Philadelphia. Said he, next day: "I have resolved never to fly with my wife, because I feel the children need at least one parent."

2. Seven army aviators died last week-end when their twin-motored bomber exploded near Uniontown, Ala. That raised to 52 the toll of army and navy flyers killed in seven 1938 air accidents.

Society Notes.

Debs-of-the-week:

1. Brenda Diana Duff Frazier, 17, who will inherit $5,000,000 from her grandmother when she reaches 21, was introduced to 1,000 members of New York's top-hat society with a $20,000 champagne fiesta at the Ritz. Two bands played swing songs from midnight till dawn, and late-goers tapered off with milk at an "anti-hangover" bar.

2. Eleanor (Ellie) Roosevelt, 18, of Boston, daughter of Mrs. FDR's brother Hall, "came out" at a White House debut party—the first since Helen Taft's 28 years ago—attended by members of both the Democratic and Republican branches of the family.

Researchers In Richmond.

More than half the hospital beds in the U. S. are occupied by patients with nervous and mental disorders, and such sickness is increasing steadily.

Pondering that situation this week at Richmond, Va., doctors, psychologists and public health officials heard reports from over 100 specialists on diseases of the mind. For instance: Rats, like people, have nervous breakdowns when faced with situations too difficult to solve, said Michigan's Prof. Norman Maier. He hopes the behavior of his crazy rats will throw new light on human insanity.

1938 YEAR OF INVESTIGATION IN GOVERNMENT

4 Acts, Civil Service, Graft, Paroles, Pensions Included In 'Bare Everything' Show.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio's capital was the theater in 1938 for a year 'round show which might have been entitled, "Bare Everything."

It was in four acts: "Paroles, graft, civil service, and old age pensions."

On the stage were Gov. Martin L. Davey, his administration, members of the legislature, and even the federal government.

The plot involved multifarious attempts to uncover and rectify alleged skullduggery in governmental operations; political fortunes rose and fell.

It was a year of investigations the likes of which few states have had the opportunity of seeing.

Probes Parole System.

Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy investigated the state parole system. A grand jury, after questioning hundreds of persons, finally indicted two persons for perjury. They have not yet been brought to trial.

The inquiry resulted in the removal of parole board chairman Leland S. Dougan and a re-organization of the entire board.

A special committee of the state senate bent upon uncovering "legalized graft" in several state departments heard witnesses tesify that exorbitant prices had been paid for highway materials, coal and flour.

They revealed how a truckless trucking company, Shaw Transport, Inc., was organized to haul state liquor. Another firm did the actual hauling while Shaw Transport collect 5½ cents on each case on a sub-let contract.

Governor Davey labeled the senate investigation as an "inquisition" and "persecution" prompted by his political foes, members of the senate "hatchet gang," who tangled with the governor over appropriations.

Bradley 'Ace Witness.'

Lee Bradley, who represented himself as a former "contact man" for the governor, was an "ace witness" for the graft-hunting committee, claiming he sought to make "political deals" with utilities and automobile manufacturers for a commission.

Governor Davey charged Bradley with perjury but a grand jury failed to indict the witness. Then Bradley sued the governor and automobile company officials, alleging false arrest. He asked $500,000 damages.

The investigating committee claimed it saved the state $3,000,000.

Later in the year Attorney General Duffy's parole grand jury came to life again, "reincarnated" to investigate an alleged "shakedown" of civil service employes for contributions to the governor's primary political campaign.

It indicted 17 persons on charges of soliciting or accepting contributions. Among them were Finance Director M. Ray Allison; Jesse J. Gilbert, assistant to the state liquor director, and Miss Gertrude Fortune, superintendent of charities. All denied guilt. Charges against one person were dropped later.

As the year ended Duffy was awaiting for the Franklin county prosecutor, Ralph J. Bartlett, to proceed with trials on the indictments.

The Federal Social Security board cut off Ohio's old age pension grants in October on the ground there was maladministration in the pension system and that the governor attempted to use pensions for political purposes. The board had sent in investigators.

Governor Davey retaliated with the charge that the board was playing "dirty politics" to help Charles Sawyer, who defeated Davey for the Democratic nomination for governor. Then Sawyer lost to John W. Bricker in the general election.

The Social Security board made another investigation and early in December pronounced the Ohio pension system again "pure."

EPILOGUE:

The governor repeatedly charged throughout the various investigations that his "persecutors" were motivated by desires to advance their political fortunes.

Attorney General Duffy sought re-election and was defeated.

Senator J. Ralph Seidner, chairman of the senate investigating committee, was defeated in the primary.

James Metzenbaum of Cleveland, chief counsel of the committee, was nominated for lieutenant governor in the primary and was defeated in the November election.

Senator Verner Metcalf of Marietta, "spark plug" of the committee, sought the Republican nomination for attorney general and was defeated.

A Farmer's Diary

The Bachelor.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FIVE bachelors live within a few miles radius of my home. They live alone, in various degrees, of comfort and convenience, but they have many things in common.

Each of them cared for an aged mother—or she for him—until she died. Until that time life passed rather easily, and he was free to come and go at will. Afterward, he became, in a real sense, a confirmed bachelor.

Now he has reached the age when he is more comfortable alone, or when he would like to know girls far too young to do more than laugh at him, or jest behind his back, or date with him only when no other man is available. Just why he does not seek the company of women his own age, or a trifle younger, I never knew.

He has pets—a dog, a cat, a team, a parrot. He is a kind man at heart, but out of step so far as natural living is concerned.

"Why don't you get married and have a home?" I have asked one or another of these men, at various times, "Do you like to live alone?"

"The girls I know don't want a home—they want my money—or my car—or my company, when they can't find somebody classier." was the invariable answer.

"It's tough living alone," one man admitted, "doing all the chores, and then coming in to do the housework, too. Yesterday I had some beans on and when I came back, by golly, they were all burned, and the kitchen was full of smoke."

"Women do that, too, sometimes," I suggested.

"No," he reflected, "I never knew one to burn the pan and all."

I shouted with laughter. "See," he said. "You think it's funny. Women are expensive, I know, but if I had the right one, I b'lieve we could live as cheap as I do now. Things go to waste."

"You're thinking too much about the dollar," I told him and added, cheerfully, " I hope if you ever do get married she'll spend all your surplus funds the first year, and make you like it."

"And I thought you were my friend," he murmured dolefully.

No count was made of incoming mail.

FARMERS HAD BIG CROPS BUT SMALL INCOME

Barns, Granaries Bulged In 1938 But Revenues Dropped 15 Per Cent Over '37.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio barns and granaries bulged with abnormal supplies of hay, grain and corn as the new year approached, giving evidence of bountiful crops during 1938.

Farm income in Ohio dropped 15 per cent from 1937, however, but maintained an improvement of 83 per cent over 1932, Director H. C. Ramsower of the Ohio State university agricultural extension service reported.

Ramsower estimated gross income from all Ohio agricultural sources during the past year at $292,000,000. He attributed the decline almost exclusively to lower prices for most farm products. Production in some crops set new records.

The abundance of feed was expected to create expanded livestock production during 1939 because low feed prices make it more economical to feed livestock than to sell it for cash. Ramsower said evidence indicated a considerably larger hatch of baby chicks in 1939. Sheep and hogs already are on the increase and cattle will increase more slowly.

Acreages Increased.

Most marked changes in Ohio agriculture during the year, the extension service director declared, were the increased acreage of soyeans and hybrid corn. The estimated soybean crop of 5,000,000 bushels in 1938 was the greatest in the history of the state and 50 per cent greater than in 1937.

Seed supplies of hybrid corn were too small to meet 1938 demands, he said, adding that farmers planted nearly one-third of the total corn acreage in hybrids.

The mechanization of farms continued in 1938. G. W. McCuen, Ohio State university agricultural engineering professor, reported more combines, corn pickers, tractors and other heavy farm machinery in use.

Soil conservation education had the effect of improving the productivity of Ohio farm lands, Ramsower said. Purchases of fertilizers and lime increased to record proportions.

Credit facilities, both government and private, were reported adequate to meet all needs of Ohio farmers in making 1939 plans. Long and short term credits were available to finance almost any legitimate farm enterprise. Farm mortgage indebtedness decreased in 1938.

Large feed and grain supplies already have reduced planting of winter wheat. The Dec. 1 crop report showed 18 per cent less winter wheat than a year previous. Ramsower predicted that spring wheat acreages also would show reductions.

Since farm prosperity still depends on industrial prosperity and good purchasing power in the cities, Ramsower said that Ohio agriculture entered 1939 hopeful of industrial improvement and with a promising outlook.

MAP ROAD PLANS

Township Heads Meet Tuesday on 1939 Program.

Chairman of the boards of trustees in Richland county's 18 townships will meet with County Engineer Howard C. Sword Tuesday night at the courthouse to map the county road program for 1939.

Headed by W. M. Shaffner of Franklin township, the committee of 18 trustees was set up last week to study township road needs and means of financing a road program next year.

The county engineer will outline the county's plans for road improvements for the year and obtain information from the trustees as to the extent township finances will permit their participation in the program.

77 GET CHECKS

BUTLER—Checks went into the mail here this week to 77 stockholders of the Butler Co-operative company carrying a two and a half per cent dividend, according to W. B. Morrison, manager of the company.

The volume of business transacted this year by the company was as good as that of last year, but due to the prevalence of lower prices, the money value of this year's business fell below that of a year ago.

GREENWICH—Funeral services for Harry H. Williams, 49, who died in a Chicago hospital, were held Tuesday afternoon in the United M. E. church. Burial was in the Greenwich cemetery. Mr. Williams was a World war veteran.

FIRST WEEK ALREADY FILLED WITH EVENTS

Mid-Winter Activities Will Begin Tuesday as Clubs, Sororities and Organizations Resume Programs of Work, Study.

By FRANCES E. GENSLEY

ANOTHER pair of holidays and here we are again face to face with the calendar for the first week of 1939. After the brief vacations that many of the study groups have been enjoying during the holiday season, everyone is turning to the business of getting papers and programs ready for the remaining club season, and activities have not slacked perceptibly, but have only changed.

Looking Over the Week's Calendar

Now that the last bit of partying is well planned for, the refrigerator stocked, evening apparel neatly cleaned and pressed and all in gala readiness for New Year Eve let's take a few minutes and look over the events scheduled for the coming week.

Plans for the first two months of the year (as we told you a few days back) point to a number of interesting and exciting events in club circles, and this coming week indicates a mighty good beginning.

Monday.

Some few groups are sufficiently anxious to carry on the business of the New Year that they are disregarding the legal holiday aspect of Jan. 2, and have actually set meetings for that day. Recently elected officers of Ruth Chapter, Order of Eastern Stars, who took over their duties a few weeks ago will conduct a routine and ritualistic service at the temple on Monday evening.

A few days ago it looked as if there would be several meetings Monday evening, but sudden recognition of the holiday has caused the telephone to ring this morning with repeated requests for postponement announcements. Sofar there is little planned aside from private social affairs. Social clubs are in the minority Monday with only the Happy Eight planning a party. Miss Birdella McMullen, East Second street, is hostess.

Tuesday.

Social and study club meetings will really be resumed on Tuesday when members of two sororities —Alpha Pi Sigma and Chi Sigma —meet at the hotel, and a number of groups have afternoon and evening sessions. The Audubon members will be entertained by Mrs. Van Cook, Sherman avenue, and a large committee of members are in charge of the program to be given before the Dolly Madison club by Chief of Police Meade K. Bates.

Tourist club members will follow a 1 p. m. luncheon at the Women's Club with a program, and Mrs. Glenn Macy will serve as hostess to the Notre Dame Study club. In addition a large number of smaller card clubs and church classes have also arranged meetings.

Wednesday.

Ernest J. Wessor will be the guest speaker at the session of the Wednesday Study club on Wednesday at Mrs. E. R. Hartman's home, and the Nomads will gather at the residence of Mrs. Frank Black for a regularly scheduled affair.

Sewing for charity will occupy members of the E. L. K. circle when they assemble at the Women's Club with Mrs. Stanley Schiller who will serve as luncheon hostess. In addition ever so many groups of friends will be playing bridge, five hundred or other games during the afternoon and evening, with a scattering of slated lodge sessions, and class meetings rounding up the day's activities.

Thursday.

The first Thursday of the month is always the meeting date of several of the city's church societies. Women of the Missionary societies of both the First Methodist Episcopal church and the Central M. E. church will hold sessions Jan. 5 as will members of a number of the circles of the First Presbyterian church.

Other than these church affairs there are comparatively few activities scheduled for Thursday, but members of two or three social groups will have sessions The W. B. A. Pioneer club will meet with Mrs. Fred Ammeter, and Mrs. Cloyd Fox will entertain the Busy Bee club at her home the same day.

Friday.

With all the dances that have held social interest in the past week a week-end without a dance is unusual to say the least. Other plans for Friday will supplement for music and dancing however. The regular monthly meeting of the Jared Mansfield chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will take the Friday night limelight when Mrs H. L. Creveling speaks on "Free Land"

Hostesses for the function are Mrs. G J. Kochenderfer, chairman, assisted by Miss Mary Eggert, Miss Florence J. Shires, Mrs. Paul Frank, Mrs L. M. Alexander, Mrs. A. E. Hancock and Mrs. J B. Kochheiser.

Priscillian club members will lunch at the Staiger tea room on Friday, and members of the Neighborhood Bible club, the G M. D. class, the J U. N. club, the Western Avenue Climbers Junior Garden club, the Fireside club, L'Allegro club and the Jolly Times club have all planned various sessions.

DRAMA NOTICE.

There will be no meeting of the Drama group of the A. A. U. W. Tuesday night. Members will meet at the library Jan. 17 at 7.30 p. m.

CHAPTER 36

Sara Sue was off again, talking, opening her heart. She told Cleo the whole story of his evening at the dance hall, told it with enthusiasm. But she finished rather lamely.

"I—I took him out there," she tried to explain, "to get the experience at dancing. He has been taking private dancing lessons, and I wanted a good place for him to practice. Then he can—can go to dances better with——Peaches."

"Um, yassum. But Miss Sara Sue, honey—" The old woman spoke with infinite tenderness now. "You ain't telling nobody nothing. The truth is, honey, you been awful busy helping othuh peoples with they love business, but you ain't done right by your own self. You coulda already made marriage with Mistuh Bob, I bets. And Mistuh T. J.—lawdy, he worships the goun' you walks on! But you is yearnin' your heart for anothuh man. Now ain't you, honey?"

Slowly, Sara Sue nodded, staring out a window. Tears were glistening in her eyes.

Cleo put a fat arm around her "baby" and petted her a bit. Then she moved away. "I brews you a cuppa tea, honey. It perks you up, quick." Cleo had deliberately changed the subject. The truth was, she had choked with emotion herself, "her own self" she would have expressed it. Tears dimmed her own eyes.

Sara Sue drank the tea gratefully, talking little but thinking much. It was true. She fully realized it now. Realized what she had tried desperately to keep a secret even from herself. Sipping from the steaming cup, she admitted now that she loved Thornton Holgate more than anything else in all the world.

And she was pledged to help him make love to another girl, one whom—how cruel is circumstance sometimes!—she knew to be thoroughly unworthy of him, but for whom he admitted his own devotion.

The professor least likely to attract attention at the opening of college this fall unquestionably would have been Thornton Holgate. Then, too, he was the man least likely to have stirred Sara Sue's heart.

To begin with, it was highly unlikely that she should ever have met him at all, socially. He had been a retiring, scholarly, even shy sort, who imagined himself to be middle aged, and who was eternally concerned with matematical phenomena. Sara Sue was a widow still bubbling with youth, a girl of infinite charm and animation. Fate must have chuckled a bit at bringing two such unrelated personalities together.

To be sure, the attachment was only half-way. Which only made it the more tragic. Sara Sue, herself, could not have told you why she loved Thornton. Certainly he was not her type. Her husband of five years ago had been a noisy, blustery athlete, much like her great admirer, Bob Towne, and everybody about the campus was predicting that by November Bob would have no trouble capturing the lovely Sara Sue.

It was known, by now, that Dr. Thornton Holgate saw Sara Sue frequently, but no inkling of any romance there had been given. Actually, of course, it was not a romance; it was just a one-sided, now heart-breaking business of a girl loving a man, a repetition for the nth time of life's most poignant tragedy—unrequited love.

No, it was worse than unrequited love.

It was worse because Sara Sue, loving a man, was pledged to help him win another girl!

Given fair and open field, Sara Sue or any other spunky American girl would have challenged her rival to fight. She could have set out to take Thornton away from Peaches Pomeroy, and the world would have applauded the winner. But—Sara Sue's hands were tied. Tied because she loved Thornton so deeply that she would do anything to insure his happiness. And his happiness, so he had declared, lay in winning Miss Pomeroy. Since he had seen Peaches a few times of late, he was declaring his yearning for her more often than ever, more vehemently than at first, and all Sara Sue could do was to listen and renew her professional pledge to help him.

Sara Sue could not know, of course, that a man sometimes will speak vehemently in an effort to convince not only others, but himself as well. Or at least she could not know to apply this to Thornton. She could not know that Thornton was unconsciously trying to will the happiness that he had first envisioned, but which seemed to be slipping away. Nor know that Thornton himself had really undergone a change of heart, even though unadmitted.

The truth is that Thornton had cooled toward Peaches, but—can a man drag his pride in the dust? Having sworn his complete loyalty and love for Peaches, and having hired Mrs. Davis help in winning her, could he confess now that he didn't want the girl after all?

No. In fact, he wouldn't even confess that to himself.

He told himself (as Sara Sue had earlier intimated) that he had been something of a sissy, and if Miss Pomeroy were modern and lively and gay, then he should try to match her pace. Therein, no doubt, lay the solution of his problem, the realization of his dreams.

"Perseverance is a good trait, in love as well as in business, Thornton," Sara Sue counseled. "Don't stop trying to win Peaches. If she refused you a date for the freshman dance, ask her again for the big autumn prom, the International. It's not too early to ask her now."

The autumn prom, at which the social elite of south Texas would be on parade, was scheduled for the end of the football season. Specifically, for the night after the big international game.

Rice Institute, having won a championship in 1937, and being an independent university in the largest border state, had been chosen by ballot of American football coaches to represent the United States in the first of a new series of games between this nation and the Republic of Mexico. The latter would be represented by its own university team from Mexico City, itself an excellent football organization.

And following that would be the International ball, honoring the visiting players. It would be the one outstanding social event of the college year.

"Everybody will be there, Thornton," Sara Sue was explaining. "Everybody of social importance, that is. It would be a real pleasure for you to take Peaches. And—I think she may not be dated yet, and will probably go with you."

"Excellent, if she would," he agreed. "I shall ask her. Would you advise me just to telephone, or—perhaps send my request? Perhaps with some flowers?"

Sara Sue considered that.

"Why Thornton—I believe you are right! Surely! What a nice way to do it. Write her an informal note, saying—just saying it would surely be a pleasure to escort her to the International ball, or something like that, and put it in a box of roses. Why, I'm proud of you for thinking of it!"

Sara Sue would have been thrilled, she knew, to have received a box of roses with a request for a date tied in. Now she could even enjoy Peaches' thrill a little bit, vicariously.

She gazed up at Thornton smiling sweetly, unconscious of the mistiness in her eyes. He looked so fine! He was a trifle florid, naturally, and this made him seem boyish when he blushed a bit more under praise. He had weaned himself from the habit of looking away from people when conversing with them, a habit born of shyness. He had stopped being owl-eyed and quizzical and frowny when something startled him. He was still quiet of manner, and polite, gentle and genteel. But he certainly was no whit a sissy any more.

He had almost given him life to save two others, in the sea at Galveston. And Sara Sue herself had seen him knock out a burly sailor in one smashing fist blow, without seeming unduly ruffled about it. He seemed to be a gentleman of quiet, reserve power, perhaps a physical and mental power which he himself had not fully appreciated nor appraised. Sara Sue told herself, in this moment of looking at him, that Peaches Pomeroy would be a fool if she did refuse him.

He went ahead with his plan, when he had left Sara Sue's cottage.

THEATERS

"High Jinks Revels."

WITH every theater in town having a midnight matinee, the Madison takes precedence by reason of its stage presentation which lists five acts that sound decidedly promising. There will be the Flying Cardovas, which for many years was the headline act of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circuses, and Bill Anson, who is an imitator of celebrities; Jackson and Blackwell, comedy dancers; Kelso and Lee in comedy juggling and the Callahan Sisters in a dance act. On the screen the Madison offers "Blondie" with Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake.

"Dawn Patrol."

A distinguished cast of all men players would seem to assure quality screen entertainment in "Dawn Patrol," dramatic story of the British Royal Flying Corps, which opens at the Ohio at 6 p. m. today and continues through the first half of the week. Basil Rathbone, as the officer in command, is near the breaking point because he has to send the merest boys up into the air to meet certain death. Soon the only experienced flyers are a pair of daredevil aces —Errol Flynn and David Niven, and their bitter personal fued add to the suspense and tension. The sky patrols in the early dawn have been carefully filmed.

"Three Loves Has Nancy."

Janet Gaynor with three swains seeking her heart is the attraction at the Ritz, both as a New Year Eve attraction and through Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Janet is supported by Franchot Tone, Robert Montgomery, Guy Kibbee, Claire Dodd, Reginald Owen and in a minor suitor's role is Grady Sutton. "Fast Company," with Melvyn Douglas and Florence Rice, is for movie goers who like their adventure spiced with comedy and romantic mystery.

"Room Service."

A romance that blossoms in an atmosphere of bland double-dealing, wild hilarity and the unbelievable daffiness of a Marx Brothers comedy, has Ann Miller and Frank Albertson for its major characters. These two attempt to retain their sanity while all about them are driven to an aggravated form of mania by the antics of Harpo, Groucho and Chico Marx in "Room Service." The hilarious comedy heads the Park bill at the midnight show, with Frankie Darro in "Tough Guy" as a secondary feature.

"Swing Sister Swing."

This comedy is, as may be guessed, Hollywood's attempt to cope with the jitterbug trend, and all of its characters are intended to portray the strictly modern person who is known as a "rug cutter" or jitterbug. Ted Weems and his band are seen, Ken Murray is the top name in the cast and Johnny Downs, Eddie Quillan and Kathryn Kane are the trio who learn the show business by means of their dancing feet. The song hit of the picture is "Wasn't It You." A Buck Jones Western is on this double feature bill at the Majestic today and tomorrow with a midnight show.

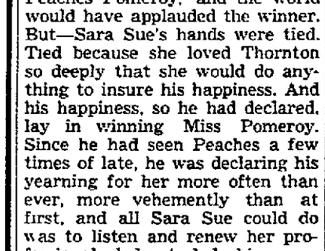
A RESOLUTION

Among the players met next year,
If you would be a leader,
Resolve at once that you will learn
To be a real card-reader.



(Dealer. South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Here is a case which illustrates the accuracy of a thorough player's card reading, the chief difference between fair and fine players. The bidding had been brief but spirited—1-Club by South, 1-Heart by West, 1-Spade by North, 2-Diamonds by East, 2-No trump by South and 3-No trump by North.

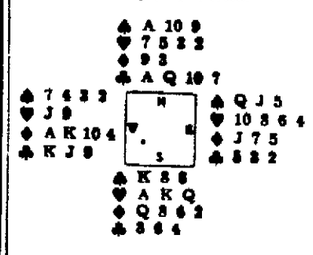
When West led the heart J, East had his chance to go wrong or right. In this instance he went wrong. He won with his king, switched to the diamond K, and the declarer promptly ran nine tricks.

Veteran students of the game lead an honor from their long suit only when holding an "honor combination"—at least three of the top six cards, two of them being touching except that the J also is led from J-10-8. Here the J lead guarantees possession of the 10, denies the Q, which declarer therefore has, and indicates one other "honor combination" card. It can't be the K, 9 or 8, all of which are in sight to East in his own hand or dummy, hence it positively is the ace.

East therefore can see that a lead through the Q to the remaining A-10 would mean a run of the suit, which must almost certainly be of five cards in view of the bid and the lead. He can tell that South was chancing a doubtful stopper in the hope of running nine fast tricks when he got into the lead. But a return of the heart suit would have set the contract at once.

* * *

Tuesday's Problem.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

After West leads the diamond K, A and 4 against South's 3-No Trump, how should declarer play to get the maximum number of tricks?

Colorful, Varied Events Marked Year In Mansfield

PROGRESSIVE MARCH PACED BY SCHOOLS

Here's Chronological Review Of Important Happenings Of Past 12 Months.

When Father Time tucks 1938 away in his scrapbook tonight, Mansfield and Richland county can look back on a year dotted with colorful and varied events but not spectacular as a source of important news.

The city and county had troubles aplenty, but the year brought no major catastrophe. It saw a number of the city's better-known citizens taken by death. It brought a shift to Republicanism in state politics, but the Democrats retained their hold on county offices.

Despite the handicap of a nation-wide business and industrial recession, the city continued its progressive march. A $1,000,000 school program headed the list of building activities. A new $150,000 theater took its place at the southeast corner of Mansfield's public square.

A $150,000 addition was started at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company plant, and the Mansfield Telephone company launched a $25,000 expansion program. Work was started on a $90,000 apartment building.

Two Air Tragedies.

The city was stunned by a plane crash in California which carried Miss Mary Lou Dirlam and her brother, Tracy, to their deaths against a mountainside. They were members of a prominent Mansfield family.

Another air tragedy west of the city claimed the lives of Pilot Glenn Gages and a student flyer, Theodore Crum.

The city and county had only one murder, and it is still unsolved. Sherman Reed, aged WPA worker, was beaten to death in his cabin on Seventh avenue.

Death took some of the county's most colorful characters and leading business and professional men and women. Among them was Cyrus M. Gatton, "sage of Gatton Rocks" and the county's raconteur of "tall tales;" Tracy C. Styert, Mansfield service-safety director; Eleanor Thomas Jones, founder and manager of the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium; Arthur S. Hughes, founder and president of the Hughes-Keenan company; A. H. Wood, Mansfield schools attendance officer, and Christopher Frye, 99, the county's oldest Civil War veteran.

City Celebrates, Too.

Along with its heartaches, the city had its share of fun. It celebrated the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Northwest territory with one of the greatest crowds in Mansfield's history joining in the observance. The city dedicated Liberty park, a monument to the efforts of citizens of that section.

Mansfield played host to the 11th district convention of Ahepa, Greek-American society, and the Fifth district American Legion convention.

The weather played unusual pranks. An ice storm in April virtually isolated Mansfield, and freezing weather late in May nipped early crops.

Today the city and county looked ahead with keen anticipation to the New Year. What it will bring is a mystery repeated every Jan. 1.
